LID CLAMPED ON 'WIDE OPEN' PHENIX CITY IN MOVE TO CLEAN UP FORT BENNING AREA

Worst Blizzard in 52 Years Hits N. Y.; 30,000 Isolated

HUNDREDS OF CARS STALLED IN SNOW ALONG HIGHWAYS

Syracuse, Utica, Rochester Are Snow-Bound; Five Reported Dead, 100 Hurt; Wires Down.

SYRACUSE, N. Y., March 25.—(UP)—The worst blizzard since 1888 swept across central New York tonight, causing at least five deaths and injuring 100 persons.

Wyoming county, with 30,000 residents, was reported virtually isolated as all roads were blocked. Police reported scores of automobile accidents caused injuries to at least 100 persons.

Many abandoned automobiles were buried under huge snowdrifts.

Three large cities were isolated as snow blocked highways as well as secondary roads. Police at Rochester and Utica were stationed at city outskirts to prevent motorists from attempting to leave the cities. Syracuse conditions were such, police said, that no motorists could enter and none dared attempt leave.

Travel Warnings Broadcast.

State police requested radio stations to broadcast warnings against travel.

Three hours' excitement resulted at Auburn because of a low-flying plane or planes. Police believed some private pilot was attempting to land because of the storm, and an emergency landing field was prepared on the frozen surface of a near-by lake.

After Auburn police reported the plane had vanished, airline officials suggested that rather than hearing one plane from time to time as it circled over the area residents might have heard several commercial airliners passing at intervals over Auburn after being rerouted because of conditions over their usual routes.

Dozens of trains were stalled in drifts, but train service to Syracuse, Utica and Rochester was maintained despite growing difficulties. Sixteen trainloads of winter sports fans were marooned in the Laurentian mountains for several hours.

Telegraph and telephone communications were hampered and highway crews worked 24-hour shifts as the snow continued to drift over many of the state's main traffic arteries.

Airlines and the army reported their planes all accounted for. One army plane nosed over in landing near Cortland but the pilot was not injured.

An ambulance from Rochester required more than four hours to travel 20 miles to Spencerport and return with a man seriously injured by an automobile.

Constitution's Garden School Will Open at 10 O'Clock Today

Mrs. Crown To Discuss Summer Flowering
Bulbs at First of Three Sessions at Atlanta
Woman's Club.

The Constitution's Annual Spring Garden School opens at 10 o'clock this morning at the Atlanta Woman's Club. Mrs. Fletcher Pearson Crown will conduct the three-day session which is open to all garden lovers free of charge.

Mrs. Crown, local garden expert, will discuss "Summer Flowering Bulbs" at her first class today, and will describe methods of planting spring bulbs. Many gardeners plant their bulbs in the fall, and the 20 or 30 bulbs that should be planted in the spring will be discussed, including hyacinths, montebretia, amaryllis, and crinum.

Summer flowering bulbs are of wide variety, attaining a height of a few inches to seven or eight feet, and growing in sun or shade. Gardens and borders are not complete without some of this group of flowers.

The garden club with the largest proportional attendance today will be given a prize of $15. These daily prizes will be given each day of the school, and the grand prize of $25 will be awarded the garden club with the largest attendance. Friends may register for a club, and each person registering must list the club and the number of members in the club for which they are registering.

The classes are designed to give anyone interested in gardening and beautifying lawns, walks, and borders, the opportunity to hear Mrs. Crown discuss these subjects.

Tomorrow's class will be held on "Annuals and Their Place," flowers to be planted in borders to insure continual blooming, and flowers for cutting gardens to insure a continual supply throughout the summer.

The final class, which will be held Thursday at 10 o'clock will be a discussion by Mrs. Crown on "Winning Ribbons in the Flower Show." This lecture will be the highlight of the school for garden clubs, collectively, as Mrs. Crown will discuss all phases of a show from making the plans to exhibiting and visiting the display.

ARNALL PLEDGES AID TO U. S. PROBE

Notifies Rogge and Camp He Will Help If State Affairs Are Probed.

Federal investigators will have the co-operation of the state law department if they decide to examine public affairs in Georgia. Attorney General Ellis Arnall said yesterday.

He made this pledge in letters to John Rogge, assistant attorney general of the United States, and Lawrence S. Camp, district attorney for the northern district of Georgia.

Return Indicated.

Rogge, who was in Atlanta last week in connection with the federal grand jury investigation of Congressman Frank Whelchel, of the ninth district, issued a statement in which he indicated he would return to Georgia in a few weeks to investigate affairs affecting the state as disclosed by the report of the economy committee.

In his letter to Rogge, Arnall said:

"According to press dispatches, it is likely that you will make some intensive investigations in Georgia. I want you to feel free to call on me and my department if we can render any possible assistance or help."

A similar letter was dispatched to Camp.

Follows Policy.

Arnall emphasized this offer was in line with the policy of his department in aiding the federal government in its investigations. He also said the state law department is now assisting federal authorities in their efforts to curtail the racing wire service. He explained there were "four or five spots in Georgia" which were under scrutiny in this connection. He mentioned specifically Albany, Macon, Augusta and Savannah.

Rogge was the leader of a recent investigation of public affairs in Louisiana, which resulted in numerous indictments and a political upheaval in the state.

FLOGGING JURY QUESTIONS 50 IN SECRET SESSION

Boykin Says Witnesses, Assured of Protection Through Secrecy, Have Given Important Data.

Additional pieces were fitted together yesterday in the highly colored jigsaw puzzle of the Fulton county flogging outrages by a second special session of the grand jury.

More than 50 witnesses and suspects, carefully selected and secretly summoned at the direction of Solicitor General John Boykin Sunday night, filled witness rooms at the courthouse and were paraded before the closed meeting of the jury.

Witnesses again co-operated by withholding names of all persons involved and possible testimony adduced, although the corridors were alive with reports of specific cases under consideration.

On result of the absolute secrecy assured witnesses, Boykin said, was the gratifying readiness with which persons receiving important information were communicating with authorities and appearing to tell their stories.

"A situation of this kind, where fears must be overcome, requires a 'solite' protection of informants," the prosecutor pointed out. "This we are able to provide, and the results are very promising."

As in last week's sudden convening of the grand jury, the suspects were kept together in a waiting room near the grand jury room where witnesses could survey them. As identifications were made, the witnesses gave sworn statements to County Patrolman J. W. Gilbert, who has been active in the probe since the fatal shooting of Ike Gaston near Ben Hill on March 7.

Strategy of the prosecution was known to be to complete every phase of the case against each principal before taking legal action.

Indictments, when ready, will be returned by the grand jury as a swift stroke to prevent co-operative counteraction by leaders of the flogging group.

As witnesses gave information, officers were sent out to follow leads it suggested. There were no arrests and none was expected pending further indictments. So extensive were the ramifications disclosed that even seasoned officers were deeply impressed.

Among the afternoon activities was a sudden raid upon an East Point house where residents of the Ku Klux Klan were said to have been concealed. The effort was fruitless.

The grand jury adjourned until 10 o'clock this morning. It was recalled that W. W. Scarborough, deputy sheriff now on leave of absence, and exalted cyclops of the East Point Klan, testified two weeks ago at the coroner's inquest into Gaston's death that no records were kept of Klan activities.

Whirlwind Drive.

The League of Women Voters have staged a whirlwind drive in behalf of a late primary, while those favoring June 5 date have been working quietly among members of the committee.

The faction favoring a June 5 primary are claiming 46 votes in the committee, composed of 76 members.

Some members are predicting that the attendance will be very small.

The meeting has been called by W. S. Northcutt, chairman, and J. Wilson Parker, secretary.

Food Stamps Seen
For New Orleans

WASHINGTON, March 25.—(P)—Representative Maloney, Democrat, Louisiana, expressed the belief today that extension of the government's food stamp plan to New Orleans was imminent.

500 NEW PLANES WILL BE RELEASED TO ALLIES BY U. S.

Woodring, Strategists Agree To Further Relax Restrictions Against Sale of Craft.

WASHINGTON, March 25.—(UP)—National defense strategists headed by Secretary of War Harry Woodring agreed today to turn over to the Allies 500 new model war planes being built for the army and navy and to further relax restrictions against sale of experimental craft.

The abrupt change in policy was disclosed after Woodring, Assistant Secretary of War Louis Johnson and Chief of Staff George C. Marshall had conferred with President Roosevelt who presumably gave his approval.

Mr. Roosevelt last week defended mass sales of aircraft to the French and British as a medium for expanding domestic production capacity and branded as bunk reports that secret devices, such as bomb sights, also would be sold.

To Confer Wednesday.

The defense chiefs disclosed their agreement while the house military affairs committee prepared to call Woodring on Wednesday to define the new policy and as Senator Robert M. La Follette, Progressive, Wisconsin, pressed for adoption of his resolution to investigate such sales.

The senate military affairs committee will vote on La Follette's measure Thursday. He testified at an executive session today and later reiterated that congress should ascertain whether the sales are hampering the army-navy production program or boosting the costs of their planes.

The 500 craft to be diverted to the Allies would be an installment of several thousand which the Franco-British purchasing mission has on order or will order. The agreement is "subject to revision" and is predicated on several reservations.

Stipulations Made.

These include stipulations that the manufacturers would be required to guarantee that the army and navy would receive better aircraft by deferring the deliveries; that no planes sold would be manufactured or assembled abroad; that the Allies would keep the War and Navy Departments abreast of how the ships perform under fire so that improvements could be charted for future models, and that no secret military devices be disclosed.

The President's defense advisers denied that the Allies would get 2,000 so-called reserve planes being built for the army. It was admitted, however, that six of the latest model pursuit ships and bombers on which the air arms have not begun to get delivery, would be released.

Liberalization of the sale policy was forecast soon after Mr. Roosevelt voiced his stand. The White House earlier had defended the policy and Woodring, Secretary of the Navy Charles Edison, and Treasury Secretary Henry Morgenthau Jr. also had said publicly that it would not retard the army-navy expansion program.

No Bathing or Cooking.

The water officials decided it was time to act, and as it was past midnight and too difficult to call everyone to cut off their water, they cut off the district. Late today it was still cut off, and none could bathe, or even cook meals, as everyone was afraid to turn on the regular gas too.

One theory was that some amateur plumber had hooked up a gas line by mistake with the water main. Underground pipes carry gas from the near-by oil wells, some located on the university campus.

INJURED IN ACCIDENT.

BRUNSWICK, Ga., March 25.—Mr. and Mrs. A. J. Gordon, prominent at Brunswick couple, were injured in an automobile accident yesterday near Midway, in Liberty county, on the Coastal highway. They were brought to a Brunswick hospital for treatment.

Pressure for Rebuilt Cabinet In Great Britain Is Mounting

Press Is Outspoken in Demands for Changes;
Talk Stirs London as Much as Details of War.

LONDON, March 25.—(P)—Pressure grew heavier today for a rebuilt government, concentrating the nation's economic, maritime and military power in fewer hands. A war cabinet of five ministers, instead of the present nine, was suggested.

The question of changes ranked as high in interest among the British as the details of the war itself. Only the reported discovery of a new German aerial torpedo challenged politics as the first concern of thousands getting ready to return to work tomorrow after an extended Easter holiday.

Outspoken demands for "bold and far-reaching changes" were sounded in the press.

Under the proposed plan First Lord of the Admiralty Winston Churchill would gain a greater voice, speaking for the land, sea, and air forces as well as the ministries of supply and shipping. The five-man cabinet would be composed of Prime Minister Neville Chamberlain, Churchill, Chancellor of the Exchequer Sir John Simon, Foreign Secretary Lord Halifax, and Lord Privy Seal Sir Samuel Hoare.

The present war cabinet includes these four as well; Air Minister Sir Kingsley Wood, War Minister Oliver Stanley, Minister Without Portfolio Lord Hankey and Minister for Co-ordination of Defense Lord Chatfield.

The question of including labor representatives in the government was reported to be under consideration.

Left-Wing sentiment found expression in a resolution adopted at a conference of the National Union of Shop Assistants, Warehousemen and Clerks at Birmingham. The resolution favored ending the war and ousting the Chamberlain government.

The author of the resolution, Miss A. Johns, of London, said: "We are told this is a war to end aggression. This comes from the British capitalist class which has held down India by force and violence and shot down strike pickets in the West Indies, which has oppressed, starved and exploited Negro workers in Africa and is still carrying on aggression against Ireland."

State Store Open.

The action of the board barred legal sale of liquor in Russell county except at the state store. Some 30 beer licenses operating outside the corporate limits of Phenix City, against whom Albright said no complaints had been made, were not affected.

The suspension of the licenses came in the wake of reports that army authorities at Fort Benning, where thousands of men have been concentrated recently for the spring army maneuvers, might keep soldiers out of the Alabama river town because of the influx of "lewd women."

However, Brigadier General Asa L. Singleton, commandant of the infantry school, told The Constitution that declaring Phenix City an "out of bounds zone" had not been considered by the army authorities.

General Comments.

Commenting on the action of the Alabama ABC board, General Singleton said:

"I don't know the facts in the case, but if they are trying to better conditions and morals in the community, I am with them. It is very interesting to hear of this move. I have never considered putting Phenix City out of bounds. My own impression is that most American cities need tightening up along these lines, that is, vice and morals generally."

Told of the action of the board, Mayor Ashby Floyd, of Phenix City, came to the defense of his community, saying:

"I think it will do some good. We have been trying to better conditions in our town. Last fall, we closed many tourist camps, and only last January we had a drive against lewd women. My orders to police were to arrest

LIQUOR LICENSES TO BE SUSPENDED BY STATE BOARD

Drive Follows Rumors Army May Declare Town Out of Bounds During War Games.

SPECIAL TO THE CONSTITUTION.

COLUMBUS, Ga., March 25.—Touched off by a United States public health drive against the spread of venereal diseases at the army's largest infantry school at Fort Benning, near here, a "clean-up" movement today swept over the town of Phenix City, Ala., across the Chattahoochee river from here.

The lid was clamped on the wide-open atmosphere of the area surrounding the army post when liquor and beer licenses of 20 establishments at Phenix City were suspended indefinitely by the Alabama Alcoholic Beverage Control Board at Montgomery.

E. Roy Albright, board chairman, said at Montgomery, the suspensions were ordered—effective at 10 o'clock in the morning, April 1—because of "improper conduct of business and violations of the beverage control law as well as rules and regulations set up by the board under authority of that law."

The action of the board barred legal sale of liquor in Russell county except at the state store. Some 30 beer licenses operating outside the corporate limits of Phenix City, against whom Albright said no complaints had been made, were not affected.

Distance Swimmer Fails in 71-Mile Try

ABOARD THE SCHOONER SEA BREEZE, En Route to West Palm Beach, Fla., March 25.—(UP)—Paul Chotteau, husky French distance swimmer attempting a 71-mile swim through the Atlantic ocean from Bimini, B. W. L., to West Palm Beach, was taken from the water at 9:20 p. m., E. S. T., tonight, 25 miles short of his goal.

No reason for abandoning the swim was given.

Except for an exciting moment five miles off Bimini when a nine-foot mako shark was harpooned by attendants aboard a conveying dory, the swim had been uneventful.

Workman's air of bravado quickly vanished. He gulped and meekly acquiesced when he was returned to jail shackled by his alleged confederate, Tannenbaum.

U. S. COURT RIGHT TO HEAR 'BURNING CASE' CONTESTED

Underwood Considers Officer's Plea That Charge of Torturing Boy Is Georgia Affair.

Trial by the federal government of suspended City Plainclothesman W. F. Sutherland, of the Atlanta police department on charges of violating the constitutional rights of a citizen was delayed yesterday, while United States and defense attorneys argued whether or not Sutherland's alleged offense falls within the jurisdiction of the federal courts.

Attorneys are to complete their arguments this morning, and file briefs for the consideration of United States District Judge E. Marvin Underwood.

Sutherland is under a three-count federal indictment charging him with beating and torturing Quintar South, a 16-year-old Negro boy, in order to obtain a confession. The indictment alleges he burned the skin from the boy's neck and arms with a police photographer's drying tool. He is also under a state indictment charging assault and battery in the same alleged offense.

In filing his demurrer yesterday, Defense Attorney H. A. Allen made it plain that he was not trying to start any "state versus federal government" controversy, but wished to prove that if Sutherland was guilty of the charges in the indictment he should be tried in the state, not the federal courts.

"We insist that if my client is guilty of burning and torturing the boy as alleged, he was not depriving him of any civil right guaranteed by the federal constitution, but of a right granted by the Constitution of Georgia," Allen said.

"The fourteenth amendment," Allen continued, "does not attempt to regulate the relations of citizens to each other, but is restrictive on the rights of a state to deprive citizens of their rights."

Sutherland is accused, he stated, of acting on his own authority without orders, and in alleged defiance of state laws, and was not an agent of the state at the time. Albert Arent, civil liberties specialist of the Department of Justice, replied for the government that "an officer discharging his duty is an agent of the state," and that the supreme court "adheres firmly to the proposition that actions of state officers constitute an action of the state."

Dr. Crawford W. Long Discovered Anaesthesia While Mob Threatened, Daughter Here Relates

Mrs. Eugenia Harper Recalls Talking to Father.

The only living child of Dr. Crawford W. Long yesterday described how her father discovered anaesthesia through the popular use of ether, during his time, as an intendant.

She is Mrs. Eugenia Long Harper, of 133 West Columbia avenue, College Park, and she will tell the story on a radio program next Tuesday night, just three days after the 88th anniversary of the operation which was destined to make surgery painless.

On April 8 she will attend ceremonies in Jefferson, Ga., where commemorative postage stamps will be placed on sale by Postmaster General James A. Farley, honoring the name of the man who ignored threats from a lynch-mob to try an experiment with a drug that had been used only as a stimulant during "ether fests."

Father's Modesty.
As a child, Mrs. Harper recalls her father's modesty about his operation which removed two tumors from the neck of James R. Venable, who had been put to sleep by ether fumes. It was the first time in medical history that an anesthetic, other than mesmerism, had been employed.

Barely 26 years old and just graduated from medical school, Dr. Long had been practicing in Jefferson. There he recalled his college days when medical students would smell the fumes of laboratory ether purely for its exhilarating effects.

Realizing that a large dose of the chemical would produce unconsciousness, Dr. Long resolved to try it as a method of making surgical operations painless.

"According to Mrs. Harper, his chance came when James Venable consented to take ether and submit to the operation. With four witnesses in his small office, Dr. Long performed the operation and became famous.

Mob Outside.
Outside his home was a restless mob, waiting for the results of his experiment. If it had failed, Mrs. Harper said, her father's life would have been endangered.

It was a year ago that the Post Office Department, in planning a series of commemorative stamps, decided to honor Dr. Long by using his picture on one of the issues. That stamp will first be placed on sale in Jefferson, the scene of the operation.

Postmaster General Farley will be introduced by Senator Richard B. Russell, who has replaced on the program Congressman B. Frank Whelchel. The congressman asked to be relieved following his indictment on charges of selling postal positions.

Mrs. Harper will be present at the ceremonies as honor guest. Her appearance in Jefferson and on the radio program which will be broadcast from New York city will be her only participation she will make in the anniversary observance.

At least 85 years old, but with a mind as keen and agile as her father's, she recalls vividly the period following the War Between the States, where Dr. Long took up prac-

Mrs. Eugenia Long Harper, of 133 West Columbia avenue in College Park, is the only living child of Dr. Crawford W. Long, who will be honored April 8 by the issuance of a commemorative postage stamp. Yesterday she described his discovery of anaesthesia and the first use of ether in a surgical operation. Earlier previously, she says, was used as an intoxicant on parties known as "ether frolics."

tice in 1851 after he had spent two years in Atlanta.

When Athens was threatened by federal troops, she relates, her father was forced to bury his records and testimonies of the historic operation. Recovered later, they are now in the Congressional Library.

Mrs. Harper said yesterday she had been receiving hundreds of requests for autographs signed on sheets of the new stamp. She will purchase the first allotment from Postmaster Farley, then turn it over to the Crawford W. Long Memorial hospital in Atlanta.

She leaves Saturday for New York city to take part in the radio broadcast. It will not be her first trip to that city, for she has spent many years investigating medical records, substantiating her father's claim to immortality.

She has lived in College Park for about 15 years. She says she has lived too many years to be thrilled over the ceremonies in honor of her father.

She explained several popular myths concerning the famous operation. It was not performed, she said, under a tree, but in the office which Dr. Long maintained. The tree has since died, she says, because it was near a large oak that the records were buried during the War Between the States, an oak which still is standing.

Dr. Long was not married at the time of his discovery, but several years later.

Mrs. Harper is the only survivor of 12 children, all of whom were born in Athens. She expects, she says, to continue as a survivor for a long time.

Eve Curie Tells Vivid Story Of Parents' Radium Discovery

Daughter Relates Love and Accomplishments of Famed Couple.

A simple, straightforward but highly dramatic story of the "private lives" of Marie and Pierre Curie, the co-discoverers of radium, was presented to a capacity audience at the Glenn Memorial auditorium last night by Mile. Eve Curie, daughter of the famous scientists and a world-renowned celebrity in her own right.

Speaking in clear, fluent English with only a trace of an accent to betray her nationality, the charming French "ambassador of good-will" completely won one of the largest lecture crowds in Emory's history and more than justified her reputation as one of the smartest-looking, best-dressed women in the world.

White Presides.
Dr. G. C. White, vice president of Emory University, presided and introduced Dr. Sara Branham, a graduate of Wesleyan College, a research scientist with the United States Public Health Service, who, in turn, presented Mile. Curie.

Drawing most of her material from her biography of her mother, she recounted the early struggles of the two young students who were drawn together first by their mutual love of science and later by their love for each other and the almost insurmountable obstacles of poverty and privation which they finally overcame to give to the world one of the most important medical discoveries of modern times.

Her parents, she said, worked in separate fields for a time following their marriage, but joined forces in what she termed a "magnificent alliance of man and wife" after her mother definitely had established the existence of the then unknown radio-active element. Working together they succeeded, four years later, in isolating radium.

'Dream of Dreams.'
Mile. Curie said she supposed it was a "combination of curiosity and intuition" which spurred her mother on to find the hidden cause of radio-activity in certain types of ores and declared that no one else in the world was as thrilled by the discovery.

"Contrary to the general impression," she said, "both my parents were comparatively young when they successfully completed their years of research and they gloried in being able to make such a contribution to the world's scientific knowledge. For then it was the dream of dreams fulfilled."

Mile. Curie, who spoke under the sponsorship of the Atlanta Wesleyan College Alumnae Club, wore a simple, individually tailored outfit, consisting of a long-sleeved blouse of crisp silk of a deep wine shade, and a long black skirt, both giving the appearance of being tightly fitted.

BOB BURNS NAMED IN $70,000 SUIT

Man Says He Was Kidnaped, Forced To Deny Theft of Wife's Love.

LOS ANGELES, March 25.—(P)—Comedian Bob Burns was sued for $70,000 damages today by Daniel W. Hoge, who charged he was kidnaped from his Wilmington home December 29, 1938, and forced to sign a denial that Burns had alienated the affections of his wife, Millie Bernice Hoge.

Hoge charged that the defendants, who include Jacob H. Kaip, 10 John Does, two Jane Does and Paramount Pictures, Inc., forced him to go to a downtown office building, after they had ransacked his home and taken a number of documents.

There, he said, under threats of continued imprisonment and violence, he signed a paper releasing Burns from all charges and a similar paper releasing Paramount from responsibility.

A claimant copy of the release, which was included in the suit, read in part:

"For good and valuable consideration . . . I do release Bob Burns . . . from all manner of action by reason of my claim that Bob Burns alienated the affections of my wife, Millie Bernice Hoge, which claim I do hereby declare to have been without foundation and unjustified in fact, and which claim I do hereby withdraw and agree never again to assert."

REGIMENT ORDERED TO BENNING AREA

Maryland Unit Will Undergo Field Training.

WASHINGTON, March 25.—(P)—The War Department announced today plans to move the 34th infantry, a two-battalion regiment now stationed at Fort George G. Meade, Md., to Fort Benning, Ga., about April 6 for two months' temporary field training.

The regiment will be used to constitute a part of a "red" force during the fourth army corps maneuvers, and subsequently to provide communications troops for the third army in its more extended maneuvers.

The department also announced a portion of the 21st engineers, consisting of the headquarters company, less detachments, and the first battalion, would be transferred from Fort Benning, Ga., to Langley Field, Va., where it would function with the GHQ air force.

MAURETANIA RESTS IN CRISTOBAL BAY

Liner Believed Preparing To Enter Panama Canal Today.

CRISTOBAL, Canal Zone, March 25.—(P)—The 35,739-ton British liner Mauretania anchored tonight in Cristobal bay, presumably in preparation for making transit of the Panama canal tomorrow.

The great ship, which sailed under sealed orders from New York five days ago, was dark except for her running lights. Presumably she will remain in the bay overnight.

27 Are Jailed.
The first night, there were 27 in jail. We tried them on vagrancy charges and obtained 20 convictions. We have established clinics for treating those women found in jail.

"The trouble comes from Benning. The men there claim they get diseases in Phenix City. It's a hard matter to deal with. I don't know where they get em. Whenever there is a large concentration of men, there are bound to be women."

Mayor Floyd commented on this "influx" by saying:

"They come here from everywhere. New York and California, and yes, from Atlanta, too. I've lived in the town for 48 years. I don't think things are any worse on this side of the river than on the Columbus side. The women come over here and hide out."

Defends City.
An Associated Press dispatch from Montgomery earlier yesterday quoted Mayor Floyd as charging "most of these women live in Columbus. I don't think things are any worse on this side of the river than on the Columbus side. The women come over here and hide out."

Asked about this charge and questioned concerning conditions in Columbus, Mayor Edward Murrain, of Columbus, said:

"The news about the liquor suspensions is a bombshell to me. We've done a lot of good work trying to clean up Columbus. But I do not wish to make a statement on the situation until I have acquainted myself with more facts."

It was recalled here today that Dr. Thomas Parran Jr., surgeon general of the United States, recently issued a statement on statistics on venereal diseases in so far as this problem related to areas where large numbers of troops are concentrated.

CIO LEADER SPEAKS TO AUTO WORKERS

Walter Reuther Addresses Meeting About NLRB Election.

Walter Reuther, one of the CIO's leading officials in the automobile manufacturing field, was principal speaker last night at a meeting here of local auto workers.

The meeting, held at the Lakewood Heights high school, was a part of a nation-wide campaign of the Congress of Industrial Organizations to win nationwide supremacy in the automotive field. A national election, set for April 17, will determine whether the CIO or the AFL will be sole bargaining agent for tens of thousands of auto workers.

Approximately 1,700 Atlanta employees of a national auto firm will be affected by the NLRB election.

Other officials attending the meeting last night included Leo Kyzewski, of New York, vice president of the CIO's Amalgamated Clothing Workers' Union, and H. L. Smith, regional director for the south for the United Auto Workers, CIO.

PAVING PLAN SPURRED NEAR MILLEDGEVILLE

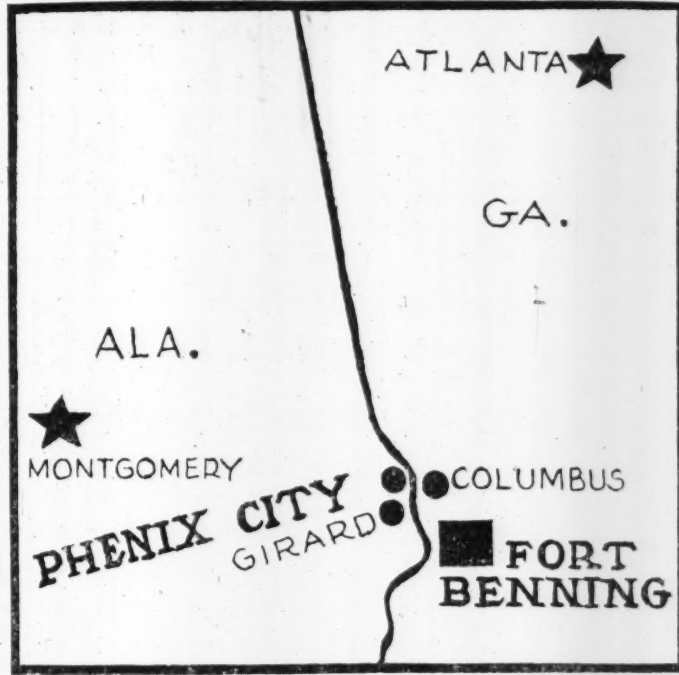

MILLEDGEVILLE, Ga., March 25.—The question of whether the Mosleyville road paving will be extended from the city limits near the state hospital to a junction with South Wayne street near Fishing Creek bridge will be definitely settled within the next two or three days, Mayor George S. Carpenter said today.

Work of securing rights of way for the proposed route is being pushed at top speed, the mayor said, in an effort to give contractors an opportunity to complete the road before President Franklin D. Roosevelt's anticipated visit April 29.

Local, Oceanic Communications Still Harassed by Spots on Sun

Radios, Wires Undergo Hangover Period After Storm.

NEW YORK, March 25.—(P)—Communications within the United States and from Europe suffered today from a cosmic hangover left by yesterday's extraordinarily violent electrical bombardment of the earth from clusters of spots on the sun.

W. A. R. Brown, of NBC, a recognized authority, termed it the "recovery phase," and the recovery was slow and uneasy. There were authoritative predictions, too, of a recurrence of the disturbance, although probably not such a powerful one, within 27 to 28 days.

Shortwave broadcasts from Berlin, London, Paris and other capitals abroad were unreliable during the day, sometimes fading momentarily and sometimes broken by what a spokesman at CBS termed a loud and unearthly "growing," somewhat reminiscent of the unhappy squawks sometimes issued from the little one-tube sets of the early 1920's.

The American Telephone and Telegraph Company reported in mid-afternoon the restoration of its London and Paris circuits.

Overland, A. T. & T. said, conditions in this country were back substantially to normal by this morning. In fear of a sudden recurrence of a storm of the upper air, however, the long lines department halted all outside work on damaged equipment.

Mackay reported that cable traffic from Europe was back to normal, but that the wireless was still "spotty."

The Associated Press wires, silenced for a time yesterday like practically every other communication allied to electricity, were in normal operation during the day save for a four-minute break on a financial news circuit and a break of more than an hour on a regional wire.

"Dual Storm."
Every expert heard on the subject agreed that the disturbance was so severe as to be without known precedent.

Brown's theory was that actually it was a dual "storm." In the first place, there was a relatively modest disturbance of a kind that had been predicted—a kind that follows a 27-day cycle and will occur again roughly within that period.

Immensely adding to the difficulties thus caused was the vast separate disturbance emanating from the sun's spots—which, other authorities said, happened to be facing the earth in the precise way required to kick up the maximum in magnetic rows.

NEW DAILY OPENS AT CHATTANOOGA

George Fort Milton Reproduces Congratulatory Letter From F.D.R.

CHATTANOOGA, Tenn., March 25.—(P)—George Fort Milton, president of the company publishing the Chattanooga News when it suspended last December for default in bond payments, re-entered the publishing field today with the Chattanooga Evening Tribune.

Milton announced in a "message to the people" that the paper had "more than 675 owners" of common stock, more than 600 of whom resided in Chattanooga. Senator Norris, of Nebraska, was listed as owner of $100 in stock.

The paper featured the four-column reproduction of a letter from President Roosevelt congratulating Milton upon his "determination to continue publication of a newspaper in Chattanooga." The President said Milton had shown "courage of the highest order in the face of obstacles which would have crushed a less intrepid spirit."

Founding of the Evening Tribune gives Chattanooga, a city of 119,793 population, two afternoon papers and one morning paper, the Times.

SEATTLE, March 25.—(P)—George Copping, legless WPA timekeeper who recently passed a GAA flight test for a private pilot's license, took his first passenger aloft yesterday. Copping has artificial legs.

Communist party member 69,640 wanted to keep his real name secret, so he signed himself "Franklin D. Roosevelt" on his membership card. When James H. Dolsen, avowed Communist of Pittsburgh, declined to reveal to the Dies committee the true identity of the forger, he was held in contempt by the committee and action was started against him. Meanwhile, secret service men sought to locate the pretentious forger.

President's Name Is Forged To Red's Membership Book

U. S. Agents Investigate: Dies Charges Contempt to Witness.

WASHINGTON, March 25.—(P) Acting on instructions from the White House, secret service agents tonight were trying to find a Communist who used the name "Franklin D. Roosevelt" on his Communist party membership credentials.

Meanwhile, the Dies committee on un-American activities decided to institute contempt proceedings against James H. Dolsen, a Communist who acknowledged that a member of his party had used the President's name, but who declined to divulge the man's identity or to answer several other questions asked by the committee. The credentials in question—a book containing records of dues payments and other data—were found in Dolsen's room in Pittsburgh. He said he had tried to dissuade the man from using the Roosevelt name, because President Roosevelt "never was a member of the Communist party and never would be."

Dolsen, 55, slight and bespectacled, readily asserted that he had been a Communist for many years, but he declined to answer a number of questions, including queries about Communist officials in Allegheny county, Pennsylvania. Asked about the owner of the book, he said: "That book belongs to some other person, who wanted to use that name for his own protection. A person can use any name he chooses."

Whereupon, the committee decided to cite him for contempt to federal officials here.

BITTER WEATHER IS HELD SAVIOR OF PEACH CROPS

Recent Easter Cold Fails To Injure Late-Blossoming Fruit; End of Wintery Wave Seen.

The cold winter through which Georgia has just passed saved the peach crop from destruction, weather and crop experts agreed yesterday.

Oliver Snapp, peach expert at Fort Valley, reported to the Bureau of Markets that late blossoming this spring resulted in little or no damage by cold weather.

"The trees, at their present stage, could stand a drop to 20 degrees," he said.

North Georgia correspondents reported that the severe cold there did no damage to trees, which were still dormant.

There also was no damage reported to the Bureau of Markets by growers of truck crops.

The back of the cold spell seems likely to be broken definitely, the weather bureau office reported, though temperatures of 32 degrees will reach as far south as Thomasville and to the southern Alabama line.

From this low temperature, today's readings are expected to move as high as 50 degrees, with skies clear as far north as Tennessee, the bureau said.

In north Georgia yesterday, the Easter cold clung on, with Rabun county reporting 10 inches of snow at 10 o'clock, and no sign of a letup.

Easter snow in Towns county fell to a depth of an inch, for the first time in years, and Cornelia, with a low temperature of 26 degrees, had snow, rain and sleet all day.

ARMY TO ACCEPT PILOT APPLICATIONS

Officer Here Today To Give Information About Flight Training.

Boys who want to become officer-pilots of Uncle Sam's fighting planes will be examined by a traveling flying cadet board at Georgia Tech next week, Lieutenant L. B. Meng, of the army air corps, who arrived in Atlanta yesterday, announced.

Lieutenant Meng, who has been temporarily relieved from duty in the 33rd pursuit squadron at Langley Field, Va., said he desires to contact all unmarried male citizens between 20 and 26 years of age, who have satisfactorily completed at least two years of standard college work, or are graduates of a recognized college or university, and who desire aviation training.

He will visit Georgia Tech, Oglethorpe University, Emory University, and the University of Georgia this week to answer all questions pertaining to flying training received by cadets.

The board, consisting of two air corps officers, two army flight surgeons, and several enlisted men, will arrive in Atlanta April 1 in a modern Douglas B-18 type bomber. The six southern states to be visited by the board are Georgia, North and South Carolina, Tennessee, Louisiana and Alabama.

Lieutenant Meng, traveling in an air corps A-17 plane, came to Atlanta from Langley Field, and may be reached today at the army station at Camp Field. Some 1,600 boys will be accepted from the army's fourth corps area.

MANY NEVER SUSPECT CAUSE OF BACKACHES

This Old Treatment Often Brings Happy Relief

Many sufferers relieve nagging backache quickly, once they discover that the real cause of their trouble may be tired kidneys. The kidneys are Nature's chief way of taking the excess acids and waste out of the blood. They help most people pass about 3 pints a day. When disorder of kidney function permits poisonous matter to remain in your blood, it may cause nagging backache, rheumatic pains, leg pains, loss of pep and energy, getting up nights, swelling, puffiness under the eyes, headache and dizziness. Frequent or scanty passages with smarting and burning sometimes shows there is something wrong with your kidneys or bladder. Don't wait! Ask your druggist for Doan's Pills, used successfully by millions for over 40 years. They give happy relief and will help the 15 miles of kidney tubes flush out poisonous waste from your blood. Get Doan's Pills.

General Gordon's Horse's Mane Raises New Issue About Statues

Statues on the state capitol grounds seem to be under careful scrutiny these days.

First came the charge that the bronze likeness of Thomas E. Watson was all wrong. This started a controversy as to whether he was right-handed or left-handed.

Now comes H. C. Callaway, record clerk in the Department of Agriculture, who says that the statue of General John B. Gordon and his horse has a noticeable defect.

It's the horse's mane that worries Callaway. As a farmer who has raised dozens of colts, he contends that a horse's mane grows on the right side of his neck, whereas the mane of Gordon's horse falls to the left.

Callaway says he doesn't have any records to prove his point, but he thinks he has had enough experience with horses to know how the mane grows. And he has others on his side.

He noticed this peculiarity of the Gordon statue one day when he was studying it. Just to be sure he was right, he said he waited until a farmer came along. When one did, Callaway asked him if there was anything wrong with the statue. The farmer didn't notice at first, but finally came out with: "Well, sir, the mane's on the left side."

If this investigation keeps up the state may have to make an appropriation to purchase new statues for the entire capitol grounds.

METHODIST ROLLS INCREASED BY 564

78 Infants Are Baptized at Services on Easter Sunday.

Atlanta Methodist ministers at their weekly meeting yesterday morning reported on Easter Sunday accessions to church membership, and gave incomplete reports that in the immediate Atlanta area 564 new members were added to the Methodist constituency, and 78 babies were baptized. Reports from a number of pastors were not made on account of absences. Several pastors said further additions, probably totaling 100, are to be expected next Sunday, and that a like number of babies would receive baptism on Mothers' Day in May.

The meeting was addressed by Dr. Willis J. King, president of Gammon Theological Seminary and instructor in Old Testament, on the subject, "Making God a Reality in the Life and Work of the Church." Dr. King urged the church to put less emphasis on institutionalism.

Mrs. W. E. Lett, president of the City Mission Board, invited all Methodist pastors and their wives to attend a tea at 4 o'clock this afternoon at Wesley House, when special honor guests will be executive officers of the North Georgia Conference Woman's Missionary Society.

Neither Myopia, nor Hyperopia, nor Astigmatism!

THREE BASIC DEFECTS of editorial vision can easily afflict organs of public information . . .

MYOPIA—the shortsightedness that comprehends little beyond the domestic scene, naively envisioning our land as a self-sufficient, tight little isle.

HYPEROPIA—the farsightedness that is so preoccupied with what's happening over the horizon that it is scarcely aware of tremendous things astir at home.

ASTIGMATISM—the distorted perception that results from eying all subjects from too partisan, too sectional, too romantic a viewpoint.

LIFE, from its inception, has attempted to keep refreshingly free from any such faults of focus. It has, in fact, brought into being not only its own completely new picture-and-word editorial technique but also a completely new editorial viewpoint of that conflict on present-and-future American living.

It would be, however, evidence of defective editorial vision to let the war monopolize LIFE's attention. So, LIFE's new editorial technique continues to serve as the most lively, understandable means of helping Americans to comprehend and enjoy intelligently the land they live in.

For instance, in LIFE's absorbing pages, readers chug 1350 miles with a pretty yachtswoman down the exciting Inland Waterway . . . and later go to a Bingo Party in Lowell, Massachusetts, where 3,800 merchants, mothers, mill hands, relievers, every week play America's No. 1 indoor game. They see, as only LIFE can show, the screwball publicity gags of Venice, California, most eccentric community of an eccentric state . . . and witness the gloomy pall of a "blackout" American City—St. Louis, the smoke-ridden.

It is an exciting and enriching experience to follow in LIFE's color pages the contributions America's outstanding painters are making to the development of a genuine American Art. It is healthful culturally, too, to be kept up-to-date, via LIFE's picture-and-word reviews, on the latest motion picture or play.

And whether it is reporting a college house party, a Revenue raid on Southern moonshiners, the terrible trek from the Dustbowl, or presenting a photographic essay on the great Northwest, LIFE provides an absorbing, continuous course in how our fellow citizens live. People are discovering more and more that its advertising pages, too, are an interesting, integral part of the entire informative, illuminating cross section of modern American living that is LIFE.

Come Mars or high-water, LIFE is dedicated to the proposition that its vigorous, new-age journalism entails a high obligation. It is the obligation to inform many millions of Americans*—in LIFE's own unique and modern way—about all things that color and shape modern American living.

CANADA'S LIBERALS STAKE THEIR FATE IN ELECTION TODAY

Mackenzie King Carries Fight on Conduct of War to Polls; Opposed by Conservatives.

OTTAWA, Ont., March 25.—(P) The fate of Canada's liberal government, which rode into power in 1935 with a record majority, hung in the balance tonight at the end of an eight-week election campaign in which the conduct of the Dominion's war effort has been the major issue.

Prime Minister W. L. Mackenzie King, who dissolved parliament last January 25 and summoned the election to silence critics who charged he prosecuted Canada's share of the war ineffectually, fired the last campaign broadcast tonight's traditional election-mass meeting in the capital.

Political leaders, meanwhile, voiced anxiety lest many of the Dominion's 6,000,000 eligible voters be kept from the polls tomorrow by snowstorms which have seriously hampered rural transportation facilities in the provinces of Quebec and New Brunswick.

Members of Canada's armed forces at home and abroad, numbering approximately 90,000 men, already have voted but the result will not be known until April 1 or later.

The main question to be decided is whether the Mackenzie King government shall carry on or give way to a national government headed by Dr. Robert J. Manion, veteran Conservative party leader. Both major parties are opposed to conscription.

Meanwhile slowly mounting returns from Thursday's Alberta provincial election showed tonight that Social Credit party men have captured 21 seats, eight short of the number necessary to form a government.

The Independents, opposing the monetary theories of the Social Crediters, have elected 15 members to the 57-seat legislature.

So many people take it
—to increase appetite
—to boost energy

COUNTLESS thousands of men and women can testify to the benefits S.S.S. Tonic has brought them. The facts are simple because of all conditions affecting the human body a low blood count is most deceptive. If you feel rundown... lack a keen appetite... have lost weight... don't give up until you restore those precious red blood cells back to normal. S.S.S. Tonic may be just what you need to get you on the right road to health and happiness again.

In S.S.S. Tonic you go after the trouble in two ways... first you increase the appetite and better your stomach digestion—thus making better use of the food you eat—secondly, thin, weak, watery blood is made rich and red again thus giving you a boost in energy.

Try S.S.S. which any drug store can apply and no ethical dealer will suggest a substitute. The big 20 oz. size is a two week's treatment and represents a saving in the purchase price. S.S.S. Co.

ing Germany.

COPENHAGEN, March 25.—(UP)—British warships were reported active off Scandinavian shores today, apparently under orders to pay less attention to legal tape and to stop this important gap in the blockade of Germany.

Reliable Scandinavian sources revealed the British campaign which appears to mark a new phase of the war. It already has resulted in two German freighters being sunk, at least four others reported ordered back home after leaving port and protests by Norway against at least two alleged violations of her territorial waters by British warships.

The size of the reported British detachments was uncertain but they were believed to include several light, fast destroyers and two heavy destroyers in addition to the British submarines which already have sunk in these waters the German freighters Hedderheim and Edmund Hugo Stinnes.

The aim of the extended blockade apparently was to cut off the shipments of Swedish iron ore which have been reaching Germany by way of the Norwegian northern port of Narvik.

The recent sinkings of German freighters as well as "confirmed reports" that several German ships had been ordered to return to German ports testified to the initial success of the British campaign. In addition, the German freighter Ostpreussen, 3,030 tons, ran aground and was flooded, reportedly in an effort to escape British warships.

Since Britain appears determined to stop the traffic down the west coast of Norway, the British attitude toward the northern neutral powers and their reaction to the intensified blockade were expected to hold an important place in international developments.

(In London it was said that Britain now may consider herself justified in taking greater latitude in interpreting technical provisions of international law concerning the inviolability of neutral territorial waters. There was said to be growing sentiment in Britain for waging the sea war along lines based on the "dictates of humanity" rather than legal red tape.)

It was believed the British could not hamper seriously imports of Swedish iron ore—except for making them slower and more expensive—unless the British navy widens its scope of activity by violating Norwegian territorial waters, as charged last night by Oslo.

HUNGARY'S PREMIER TALKS WITH CIANO

Italy Believed Holding to 'Wait and See' War Policy.

ROME, March 25.—(P)—Hungary's premier, Count Pal Teleky, surveyed the war's effects and prospects for southeastern Europe in a talk of nearly two hours today with Foreign Minister Count Galeazzo Ciano, preliminary to an interview with Premier Mussolini tomorrow.

Count Teleky was understood in diplomatic circles to have sought information on Fuhrer Hitler's talk with Mussolini a week ago. It was believed that Ciano reassured him that nothing had been agreed upon in that meeting to change the Italian "wait and see" attitude toward the European war.

It was rumored among diplomats that Hitler had suggested a reinforcement of Italian troops on the French frontier to divert several French divisions from the Maginot line so that Germany could launch a spring offensive there.

This suggestion was said to have met with the Italian argument that such reinforcements would be hard to justify.

Neutral diplomats thought that Mussolini entered into no new commitments, either for more active aid for Germany in the war or for a rapprochement with Russia with a view toward Rome, Berlin and Moscow dividing zones of influence in the Balkans.

An official announcement after the Teleky-Ciano conference today said merely that the two men had had "a long and cordial conversation."

ARTILLERY BLAZES ON FRENCH FRONT

Firing Ends Easter Calm;
Premier Reynaud Sees
Italian Ambassador.

PARIS, March 25.—(P)—The heavy thud of artillery at several points along the western front today ended the Easter-time calm. The high command's evening communiqué said that in addition to "local artillery action" there was "infantry fire along the Rhine" and aerial activity.

With time working on the side of increasing the new French government's slender 17-vote majority, Premier Paul Reynaud announced his first speech to the nation would be broadcast tomorrow at 8 o'clock (1 o'clock in the afternoon, Atlanta time).

Raffaele Guariglia, Italian ambassador to France, was received by the premier, a meeting considered significant because the new premier-foreign minister never previously had talked privately with the Italian envoy.

120,000 REFUGEES HAVE LEFT NAZIS

Dominican Republic To Be Haven Under Roosevelt-Hull Plan.

WASHINGTON, March 25.—(P) A great army of German political refugees—officials estimate the number at between 120,000 and 140,000—has crossed the seas since President Roosevelt and Secretary Hull inaugurated the international movement for their succor two years ago on March 24, 1938.

The international organization has completed arrangements for the first large-scale permanent settlement—in the Dominican Republic, where 500 families will be settled immediately and where arrangements are being made to receive a total of 100,000 individuals.

In addition, arrangements are nearing completion for another settlement, probably on a smaller scale, in the Philippines.

War broke out at a particularly unfortunate moment for the refugee work. The German government, after long and difficult negotiations, had agreed to an orderly exodus of Jews. It expressed a desire that 150,000 men and single women between 15 and 45, individually capable of earning a living, should emigrate over a period of three to five years.

It also desired that the dependents, estimated at 250,000, should follow the wage-earners when the latter had become established.

But since the war began, Germany has wanted the young men and women to remain in Germany to assist in the war work.

Other countries do not want to receive the aged and children.

DEEN BILL ASSISTS NEW YORK TRAINING

Former Congressman's Measure Permits Vocational Study.

Braswell Deen, director of the State Department of Public Welfare, reported yesterday that the New York Civil Service Commission has taken advantage of the George-Deen vocational education bill by establishing a bureau which will offer city employees "in-service" training.

New York is the first large city to apply the act in this manner, Deen said. He wrote the act and led the fight of its passage while he was serving as congressman from the eighth Georgia district in 1936. It contains a provision making federal aid available to the states for the promotion of vocational education, including public and other service occupations.

LIQUOR AND ITS EVILS

GEORGIA'S FIRST PROBLEM
Editor Constitution: It seems to me lawlessness today is on the up-grade. In most every news article will be found news of murder, stabbing, automobile wrecks, homes wrecked, floggings, election fights. In most of these cases we find liquor directly or indirectly connected. We find recommendations for the schools to teach sobriety and citizenship. We hear the schools being blamed for not teaching the youngsters many things we think should be taught. We also find books used in the schools that are paid for from the revenue of strong drink. Do our people think the youngsters are fools and not able to see the inconsistency of things?

We talk about problems in Georgia and have a fact-finding group working to get information. If you ask me, liquor and its associated evils is Georgia's problem number one.

EDITORIALS BUILDING BETTER THOUGHT POWER

Editor Constitution: Will you accept a brief compliment from me? According to my opinion you have been writing some very fine and needed editorials since last August. The most of which should be printed in pamphlet form and made possible for every well meaning person in Georgia to read and study.

This would help to reduce the crime wave in our nation, which costs the taxpayers billions of dollars yearly. These editorials would help to build up a better, cleaner and helpful thought power among all classes of mankind.

BEAUTIFUL CITY IS CAMPAIGN'S AIM

Clean-Up Drive Has Support of Civic and Municipal Groups.

A beautified Atlanta, with emphasis on thorough cleaning, painting and fire prevention, is the aim of the Atlanta Women's Chamber of Commerce, sponsors of the campaign which will reach its climax the week of April 7. Mrs. Carolyn Seivers, president of the organization which has promoted Atlanta's annual participation in the nation-wide program, yesterday said practically every civic organization, both white and colored, has expressed a desire to co-operate with schools, garden clubs and municipal department heads in the campaign to "make Atlanta clean and keep it clean."

Meantime, requests to property owners have been issued to effect the thorough cleaning of vacant lots, the burning of rubbish and the destruction of unsightly weeds. Garden club members who maintain parks in certain sections of the city have pledged themselves to increase their beautification programs.

Dr. Willis A. Sutton, school superintendent, through an extensive program in all Atlanta schools, will undertake the education of the children regarding the desirability of a clean, sightly community.

WORRIES 20 YEARS, THEN PAYS RAILROAD

KINMUNDY, Ill., March 25.—(AP)—A passenger who rode a Chicago and Eastern Illinois railroad passenger train three times between Kimmund and Salem, Ill., paid his $1.08 fare after worrying about it for 20 years.

He explained that there was no ticket agent where he boarded the train and the conductor didn't get around to collect. Railroad officials thumbed through old time-tables and found that the fare for the 10-mile trip at that time was 36 cents.

F. D. R. TO ADDRESS YOUNG DEMOCRATS

WASHINGTON, March 25.—(AP)—President Roosevelt accepted an invitation today to speak on a nation-wide radio hookup April 20 to Jeffersonian banquets being held by Young Democrat Clubs.

Dr. King pointed out great lessons from the text as he led us to consider the "mind of Christ." He declared that Christ was free from ignorance, free from pride, free from social, racial, sectional, sectarian and national prejudice, and that He was free from selfishness. He emphasized the fact that the "mind of Christ" reveals the right disposition or temper. "Temper," said Dr. King, "is seven-tenths of character." I had never heard it put like that before, but I am ready to accept his statement.

And then Dr. King brought home the great and blessed truth that in the "mind of Christ" we behold the true spirit of love. This I should say, was the heart of his great sermon. As he developed his sermon, I found myself quoting over and over the great words of the Lord Jesus Christ concerning love, and I found myself staying for a long time that day with those marvelous words: "A new commandment I give unto you, that you love one another, even as I have loved you."

"The mind that was also in Christ Jesus" is the one hope of our war-torn world. And the way to such a "mind"—to such an attitude of life—is in personal trust in the grace of the Savior. It will reflect itself in every area of life—social, economic, political, religious. It will solve every problem in the earthly journey, and take us home to heaven.

Nazis Can't Afford To Admit Truth About Blast, Says White

(This is the eighth of several articles by W. L. White, written from extensive notes made inside Germany and brought to Copenhagen for preparation to avoid Nazi censorship.)

By WILLIAM L. WHITE.
Staff Correspondent.

COPENHAGEN — (By Mail) — Almost everybody had a theory about the Munich beer hall bomb after it exploded last November. The first conclusion to which a good many people in Berlin jumped was that high party officials had planted it there themselves, that Hitler knew about it, and that the excitement and indignation were created for the purpose of launching an attack on someone, just as the reichstag fire, lighted by the Nazi themselves, was used as a pretext for suspending freedom of the press and suspending civil liberties in order to seize power.

Now, they were obviously just as much in the dark and in a far worse state than we were. Their nerves were in a terrific state for a couple of days. While they don't quite believe it, nevertheless neither could they then be sure that the bomb was not planted by Himmler himself for the purpose of blowing up Hitler, that maybe there was a big party split of which they were unaware, so that maybe they would get caught on the wrong side of it. For a while they weren't committing themselves (except to holler nervously against England—that seemed to be the official line) until the situation settled down.

Seething Discontent. Yet the official version—so unflattering to the Nazi secret police—is far better than the alternative which is much closer to the truth—namely that Nazi unity is only a facade, and behind it is so much seething discontent so very close to Hitler that it was almost able to blow him through the ceiling.

That is why the Nazis continued their loud accusations against the British secret service until the Munich explosion was convenient. They forgot—they never expected foreign newspapermen to take them seriously—they were exclusively for domestic consumption—but for the German people they tried to preserve the illusion that all Germans are united behind Hitler. This is very important in a dictatorship, for if one dis-

Ancient Missile Found Near Fort Explodes in Fire

BURAS, La., March 25.—(AP)—Workmen building a new levee behind ancient old Fort Jackson, where the river is cutting sharply, last week found a dusty cannon ball, which appeared to be a century or more old. It was passed around the campfire where the men were eating lunch, and when they went back to work, one of them tossed the ball into the fire. The men had walked about 1,000 feet away when the cannon ball exploded with a loud roar. No one was injured.

Pittman Seeks Two-Thirds Vote By Senate on Every Trade Pact

Nevadan Opens Fight Upon Treaties in Upper House.

WASHINGTON, March 25.—(AP) Chairman Pittman, Democrat, Nevada, of the senate foreign relations committee, today denounced the New Deal's system of tariff making as unconstitutional, and said congress should require that trade agreements with other lands have the approval of two-thirds of the senate before they can become effective.

He spoke as the senate unexpectedly began debate on what had been billed—due to the eagerness of the administration and the determination of the opposition—as the big controversy of the session.

Pending was a bill to extend the trade agreements act for three years. Unless it is passed—it already has the approval of the house—the authority of the administration to reduce tariff rates in agreement with other nations will expire in June.

An exceedingly close decision on Pittman's plan is in prospect, one that may be swung by a shift in two or three votes. Pittman and others contend that only by a requirement for senate ratification can the trade agreements act be made constitutional. Administration spokesmen argue that the Pittman amendment would nullify the bill. So great is the opposition of the New Deal, in fact, that it is reported President Roosevelt will veto the bill if the ratification proviso is added.

But before the Nevada had his inning, Chairman Harrison, Democrat, Mississippi, of the senate finance committee, in charge of the bill, spoke briefly in its behalf, arguing that in principle it originated with Republican statesmen of a generation and more ago, that it had worked to the benefit of American commerce, and should be continued as an emergency act in a world at war.

"We have given the countries of the world a sound reciprocal trade policy," Harrison said. "We have given them an opportunity to trade with us and with each other on just and wisely established principles. It will be the greatest influence to preserve and promote rational international trade and the maintenance and preservation of peace."

MILLION IN CHINA STILL FIGHT JAPAN

Troops and General Reported Annihilated by Invaders Harass Enemy.

PEIPING, North China, March 25.—(AP)—There are still over a million regular Chinese troops in North China, admits a survey prepared by Japanese army headquarters here.

After two and one-half years of fighting this survey throws much light on the Japanese army's own press reports during that period. Since the war began on July 7, 1937, few engagements have been fought where the Japanese did not report the Chinese forces to have been "routed," "given a stunning blow" or, most frequently, "wiped out" or "annihilated."

Now, after two and a half years of this journalistic annihilation, the army calmly reports that there is still a cool million of these regulars who escaped. It further states they are all commanded by General Cheng Chien, whom the army reported killed during a bombing of Sianfu in 1938.

The army does not point it out, naturally, but a glance at the map of North China shows that the vast majority of these Chinese troops are operating behind and between the Japanese lines.

They are made up, according to the survey, of (1) Chiang Kai-shek's central government troops, (2) former provincial troops and (3) Chinese Communist forces.

The former provincial troops are in the majority, and are relative poorly equipped and often far from their homes. Independent reports bear out the Japanese contention that they are the poorest fighters. Yet these same independent sources indicate what the Japanese do not mention, that some of them put up a good fight against the superior equipment of the Japanese army.

For instance, General Yu Hsueh-Chung's former Manchurian army (it has been wandering about China for the past eight years) has given the Japanese army no rest in Shanghai for the past two years. Chiang's central government troops are stationed partly in Shansi and Honan provinces. Although well equipped, they make little better showing than the provincial armies. The vast bulk of Chiang's army is in central and south China.

"In fighting spirit and ability they (the Communist regulars) are the best in North China," says the survey. "Whenever they learn the Japanese strength is low they make surprise attacks. When they see it is strong, they retreat and apply 'scorched earth' tactics, destroying everything of use to us (the Japanese) as they go."

"The fastest girl on roller skates" is what they call 18-year-old Jeanne Goette, who will lead one of the skating teams entered in the Roller Derby beginning tonight at the municipal auditorium.

SUN RAYS BELIEVED FACTOR IN WEATHER

Polish Scientist, Refugee Here, Hopes To Establish Climatic Influences

By THOMAS R. HENRY.
For North American Newspaper Alliance.
WASHINGTON, March 25.—One of the greatest living experts on world weather, whose records gathered during a lifetime were probably lost irrevocably in the Russian invasion of Poland, has started work anew in the United States on the job of determining direct effects of changes in the sun of climatic conditions of the earth.

He is Dr. Henryk Arctowski, one of Poland's foremost scientists, former Antarctic explorer and colorful figure in many scientific conclave.

He came to the United States to attend an international scientific congress in September and found himself marooned in Washington when his country was overwhelmed by the joint German and Russian invasions.

Dr. Arctowski was given a position at the Smithsonian Institution here and has started with renewed enthusiasm on the correlation of sun and earth happenings from the records of the astronomical physical observatory of the institution.

He already has made significant, although for the present tentative, findings of apparent cause-and-effect relationships between the variations of the sun's rays and earthly weather conditions.

All his life, he says, he had been a skeptic on the possibility of measuring the sun's variation accurately enough to establish direct relationships with weather. The obstacle to direct measurements encountered in the changing atmosphere of the earth through which the sun must be observed, he thought, was too great to be overcome.

Now he is convinced, he declared, that this is not the case and that in this direction lies much of the future of weather forecasting.

Among his findings is that of an intimate relationship between sunspots and the varying heat of the sun itself.

Dr. Arctowski is making an intensive study of North American climatic records. He already has developed evidence that the solar variations govern barometric pressure gradients in the eastern United States.

The Adorables are the only act of last week's Tip Tap Revue held over, and they offer completely new routines and new wardrobes. They are attractive girls and dance gracefully.—LEE ROGERS.

26,380,000 Men Fighting Age Are Predicted for U. S. by 1980

Falling Birth Rate Is Not Expected To Influence Defense.

By THOMAS R. HENRY.

WASHINGTON, March 25.—A permanent fighting manpower of approximately 26,380,000 for the United States—considerably more than were available during the World War—is predicted by Dr. Guy L. Burch, director of the Population Reference Bureau here, which includes on its council some of the foremost American experts on population trends.

With a declining birthrate and the average age of American citizens increasing due to the decline of child mortality, fears have been expressed that eventually this country may fall an easy prey to a "young nation" which encourages and maintains a high birthrate, such as Japan or Germany.

If present trends continue, it is predicted, in 1980 those born in the United States each year will about balance those who die, and the population will become stationary.

Average Age Greater.
"But," reports Dr. Burch, "if 20 to 45 is considered the military age, the United States will have more males of fighting age in 1980 than she had in 1930, and considerably more than she had during the World War."

In 1930 there were some 23,600,000 males between those ages. In 1980 there will be 26,380,000, not including additions through immigration.

"The average age of the man power will be somewhat greater, but there is no evidence to prove that this will lower the efficiency of the army. It may even improve it."

"While 18 or 20 to 45 may be considered the military age, war affects the whole national economy, and males between the ages of 45 and 65 are needed to take the places of those withdrawn for military service."

"With this in mind, it is significant that there will be nearly 8,000,000 more males between the ages of 45 and 65 in 1980 than there were in 1930. Therefore, even if machines of war and industry do not have a tendency to replace the common soldier and unskilled laborer, the United States will have abundant man power in time of war."

There is little likelihood of Americans becoming a race of dependent old people when the stabilized population is reached, Dr. Burch's calculations show.

Aged to Increase.
"While the productive age group will increase for a time and then remain more or less stationary," he says, "there will be a considerable change in the age groups under 20 and over 65 years of age. Speaking in percentages, by 1980 those under 20 may decrease from about 35 per cent to about 27 per cent of the total population, while those over 65 may increase from 7 to 15 per cent.

"If we receive a large number of immigrants in the near future and do not have a war, pestilence, or some other disaster that carries away a considerable number now in the productive age group, it is possible that the old age group of the population may reach 18 per cent about 2,000 A. D.

"These shifts should create a number of minor problems of adjustment, but none that should weaken the national economy. The productive capacity of the nation, so far as age is concerned, should be as great per capita as it was in our peak prosperity year of 1929, and the support of dependent old people should not cost the nation.

tion any more or as much, as it would cost to support and educate an equal number of dependent youngsters.

228 GIVEN JOBS BY EMPLOYMENT OFFICE IN ATLANTA

State Bureau Reports Brisk Easter Season; New Applications for Work Show Increase.

Sharply improved business conditions and a booming Easter week brought more jobs to Fulton and DeKalb workers than any other week in 1940, Alfred F. Scogin, manager of Atlanta's state employment office, said today in reporting 228 jobs filled. One hundred eleven were regular, and 117 temporary—lasting up to 30 days. Claims to unemployment compensation benefits filed by Fulton and DeKalb workers during the week totaled 3,159. Some 764 initial claims were filed, 690 based on total unemployment, 74 on partial unemployment, along with 1,395 for continued unemployment.

The Atlanta office, one of 32 such offices in the principal cities of the state, receives applications from people in the two counties. It reported 12,488 white men, 6,164 white women, 4,172 Negro men and 2,162 Negro women registered for work.

Despite increased employment, applications for work have not fallen off. New applications for the week totaled 632 as compared with 544 for the preceding week—an average week. Placements in private industry during March have already exceeded those made in March, 1939.

White collar jobs filled numbered 63, led by sales jobs with 38; clerical workers took 23, and professionals two. Skilled craftsman were put on 21 jobs. Yard work and spring housecleaning gave impetus to the hiring of service workers, who filled 100 jobs. Production workers were placed in 22 positions and unskilled labor in a like manner.

Demand for the following workers now exceeds the supply, it was pointed out: brick masons, male stenographers, candy dippers, and dictating machine operators.

MIAMI BURGLARS GET $13,000 IN JEWELRY

MIAMI BEACH, Fla., March 25. (UP)—Burglars today stole jewelry valued at $13,000 and $910 in cash from the winter home of John Reynolds, of Miami Beach and Long Island.

A string of 111 pearls, valued at $10,000, was included in the loot, some of which was taken from a room in which Reynolds and his wife were sleeping. Police believed the burglars entered the home early today, either through an unlocked door or by using a pass key.

WPA HEAD ENGINEER MEETS WITH AIDES

Major B. M. Harloe Holds Conference Here; Safety Heads Assemble.

Major B. M. Harloe, assistant commissioner and chief engineer of the Work Projects Administration, met in Atlanta yesterday with members of his Washington staff, the engineering staffs of WPA regions 5 and 6, and heads of the operating divisions of the 12 state offices in the two regions.

Harloe stated the two-day conference was to discuss general operating policies and procedures. Opening simultaneously with the engineers' meeting was a three-day conference of safety directors of the 12 states, led by National WPA Safety Director W. O. Wheary. The directors had under discussion plans to improve WPA working conditions so as to lower the accident and death rate on jobs. The conference was the fourth and last of a series of similar nation-wide meetings held by Wheary.

Heads of state operating divisions present are: Region 5, G. T. Nichols, Alabama; James V. Wilson, Florida; Don G. Nichols, Georgia; E. A. Maye, Kentucky; Glenn L. Bobbitt, North Carolina; A. V. EXPERT ON SPEECH STANDS HIS GROUND Correct speech simply means socially acceptable, according to Dr. Hans Kurath, linguistics professor at Brown University.

While in Philadelphia for a meeting of the American Council of Social Agencies, Dr. Kurath defended such expressions as "I ain't gonna do it" on such grounds.

"The form of speech acceptable on the Maine Line would be inappropriate and therefore incorrect on the farm," he explained. Usage, he contended, is the basis on which we call a form of speech good or bad, correct or incorrect.

Asked if he personally would use "It's me" instead of "I'm I," the speaker answered: "I never say anything else and 76 per cent of the distinguished gentlemen in this society say it unblushingly."

CIVITANS TO FETE DOCTORS, DENTISTS

Health Committee To Present Dr. Hailey at College Park Session.

Physicians and dentists of East Point, College Park and Hapeville will be honor guests at an Inter-city Civitan Club meeting at 7 o'clock tonight in the College Park Woman's Clubhouse, it was announced yesterday by Major M. C. Paget, president.

The program, arranged by the groups committee on public health, will present Dr. Howard Hailey, president-elect of the Fulton County Medical Society, who will talk on "The Greatest Menace to Future American Health."

Also on the program will be M. E. Thompson, assistant state superintendent of schools, who will describe a course in health which will be required in all state schools next year.

Paul West, principal of Russell High school, will present an instrumental quartet for the musical portion of the evening. The Inter-City Civitan Club, which meets the fourth Tuesday in each month, has a membership composed of prominent residents of East Point, College Park and Hapeville.

The public health committee, in charge of tonight's program, is composed of Dr. Hailey, B. D. Purcell and M. F. Thompson.

BALDWIN JAIL GETS FEDERAL APPROVAL

County's Prison Now Serves Athens Court Area.

MILLEDGEVILLE, Ga., March 25.—In addition to its many state institutions, Milledgeville can now boast of a miniature federal prison within its limits.

The Baldwin county jail, placed on the United States government's approved list two years ago, is now serving as the principal concentration point for prisoners arrested in the Athens federal court district in addition to its other duties, according to Sheriff W. L. Harrison.

The jail, considered one of the strongest and most modern in the entire state, was recently given federal approval for the new year. All requirements, including rigid rules governing sanitary conditions and food, have been passed by a wide margin and practically all prisoners scheduled for trial in the Athens court are brought here for incarceration.

White House Egg Roll Becomes Dreary Party as Wind Whistles

WASHINGTON, March 25.—(AP) The coldest Easter Monday on record chilled the White House egg roll today into slow motion.

According to tradition, the gates of the White House opened at 9 o'clock this morning to youngsters under 10 years of age, alone or accompanied by adults. (No adults without children were allowed.) But even though the sun shone brightly, a raw wind cut the attendance down to less than two-thirds of the 1939 figure of 52,000. Mrs. Franklin D. Roosevelt twice went through the grounds greeting her guests. A cold kept the President indoors. He was unable to speak from the White House porch as has been his custom in the past.

There was plenty of space this year to roll eggs, but the heavy wraps which thoughtful mothers insisted their children wear handicapped their rolling technique. One three-year-old with a ball-like silhouette had two sweaters and a coat on under her ski suit. Furthermore, it was hard to handle eggs with mittens on.

When the grapevine carried the word that lost children were being cared for in a downstairs section of the White House—where it was nice and warm—many children cheerfully got "lost."

The cold had another depressing effect. It put a dent into the "little businessman's take." Each year enterprising youngsters escort adults without children into the grounds at so much a head.

In years past the escort fee averaged a quarter, but this year it dropped to a dime, and if the prospect hesitated it would be cut to "Aw, five cents—come on. It isn't so cold." One chap confided that last year he made about $5. "This time I've made only 19 cents," he said.

FIREMAN IS KILLED IN ILLINOIS WRECK

CRYSTAL LAKE, Ill., March 25. (AP)—The Chicago and North Western Railroad's passenger train, "The Viking," was derailed near here tonight, killing the fireman and seriously injuring the engineer. At least one passenger was injured.

All the coaches of the train, en route from Minneapolis to Chicago, left the tracks, but only the locomotive overturned.

KNIGHTS TEMPLAR TO AID YOUTH WITH 45 SCHOLARSHIPS

Whiteside Foundation, Rosenwald Fund Will Provide Annual Sums for Rural Georgians.

Expansion of educational activities of the Georgia Commandery, Knights Templar, to provide 45 scholarships in education and government annually for boys and girls in rural sections of the state, was announced yesterday by Thomas C. Law, chairman of the administration committee.

Broadening of the scope of the work, which Law has directed since its inception in 1922, was made possible with the creation of the George B. Whiteside Memorial Foundation by the late Mrs. Carrie E. Whiteside, widow of the Columbus, Ga., capitalist.

Under terms of the will, earnings of the $70,000 set aside in Mrs. Whiteside's estate will be applied to granting scholarships at West Georgia College, Carrollton, and Emory and Georgia Universities.

Law asserted that Edwin R. Embree, president of the Rosenwald Foundation, has agreed to match scholarships in education to be granted to girls from rural communities. The Templars propose to grant 15 scholarships each year. Thus 30 girls will get courses in education.

The course of government will be provided at Georgia and Emory Universities for about 15 students a year and both institutions have promised their co-operation in the movement designed to train boys for career jobs in government service.

In 1922, when the late James K. Orr, Atlanta capitalist, was grand master of the Grand Encampment, Knights Templar of the United States, Captain George B. Whiteside suggested that the organization should establish an education fund to assist worthy boys and girls in pursuing their education, Law said yesterday. Orr came to Atlanta from Columbus.

Whiteside died before the idea was consummated, but Mrs. Whiteside donated the first $200 ever given to the Knights Templar fund in the United States, and has given the fund $200 a year since that time.

First Scholarships. The original Knights Templar fund provided loans for students, but through the Whiteside Foundation scholarships will be given for the first time by the Georgia commandery.

Since Whiteside's original suggestion was made, Knights Templar of the United States have lent 30,000 boys and girls more than $5,000,000, and the Georgia division has assisted more than 1,000 students with loans totaling more than $200,000.

The Georgia student loans have been under the direction of the board, headed by J. T. Clarke, of Augusta, and Kyle T. Alfriend, of Macon, as members.

An application for a charter for the Whiteside Memorial Foundation to direct scholarship awards already has been filed in Fulton county superior courts. The directors, in addition to the state board, will include Abit Nix, Athens, as attorney, and Earley H. Johnson, Columbus, clerk of Muscogee county courts.

Rotation Plan. In explaining the selection of students for scholarships, Law said the board has evolved a plan on much the same method that Rhodes scholars are selected. Nominations will be made primarily by junior colleges of Georgia according to a rotation system, and the best qualified students will be designated.

The Merchants & Miners Bank at Columbus will administer the estate and turn earnings over to directors of the foundation, Law said.

Work Will Await Four Convicts Who Broke Legs To Avoid It

Special to THE CONSTITUTION. DALLAS, Ga., March 25.—Four long-term prisoners at Georgia's "Little Alcatraz" prison camp here, who deliberately broke their legs to get out of work, will be returned to the prison quarry as soon as the injuries amend, Warden Arthur Clay said today.

Warden Clay said two of the men broke bones between ankle and knee by lodging their legs beneath the footboard of their bunks yesterday afternoon and twisting themselves toward the floor. Two others, he said, used a stick of firewood.

The prisoners were listed as Laminack, 29, under life sentence for armed robbery in Haralson county; Leo McIntosh, 23, serving life for a Bibb county murder; Robert Croker, sent up from Cobb county under a 40-year sentence for automobile theft, and Lewis Voltz, 25, serving a 30-year term for a similar offense in Lowndes county.

"They just can't take work," the warden said. "They've never worked in their lives, and they'll do anything to get out of it."

Of the labor required, he said "there's nothing unusual about it. It's just common labor. They make little rocks out of big rocks. You know how it is."

Warden Clay said "one or two other convicts" among the 148 in the camp had attempted to inflict similar injuries on themselves yesterday, but had failed.

Atlanta's First Peach Blossoms In '40 Are Late

One of the first peach trees to blossom in the metropolitan area this spring came out in full bloom yesterday at the residence of Mr. and Mrs. C. A. McDonald, 314 East Walker street, College Park.

Amazingly enough, according to Mrs. McDonald, the 40-year-old tree is late in blossoming this year. On many occasions, she says, blossoms have appeared during the Christmas season.

In the past, however, the early bloom has been nipped by freezing temperature so that fruit has been borne but once in the last 28 years. It is hoped, she said yesterday, that the late blossoms this year will be matured.

OKLAHOMA JUDGE HITS USE OF TROOPS

Governor Loses in Attempt To Halt Building of Dam.

VINITA, Okla., March 25.—(P) Judge Robert L. Williams was sharply critical today of the use of troops, "modern dictators" and "power interests" as Governor Leon C. Phillips, ardent state's rights advocate, battled with the federal government over the $20,000,000 Grand River dam.

The state unsuccessfully sought dismissal of a federal government restraining order preventing the Governor from interfering with completion of the dam.

Said Roads Damaged. The Governor had ordered the PWA-financed dam left open until the state was paid $889,275 as damages for state roads to be inundated.

Phillips first called out the national guard to halt work at the dam. He then obtained a state restrainer prohibiting construction of a key arch higher than 700 feet above sea level. The federal restraining order nullified his efforts, and construction has continued.

"A Monstrous Thing." "It would be a monstrous thing to destroy this dam if, as many people believe, it is being done to protect the power interests of the state," Judge Williams asserted.

Senator Lee, Democrat, Oklahoma, has contended Phillips was a "tool of the utilities."

Judge Williams, with F. E. Kenamer and A. P. Murrah setting en banc in federal district court, ruled they would hear the case on its merits.

Concerning the Governor's use of martial law to halt construction of the dam, Williams asserted: "None of these modern dictators can set themselves up under the cloak of state's rights. No Governor has the power to declare martial law until the civil authority has failed."

FATHER'S DIPLOMA IS 33 YEARS LATE

Honor Student at Age of Fifty. Howard Mason, of Reno, Nev., will get his university diploma 33 years late, but it will be a deluxe model, with all the fixings.

Mason, 50-year-old student who has two daughters who attend classes with him, has been elected to membership in Phi Kappa Phi, national scholastic honor society.

Mason, father of Dorothy and Elizabeth Mason, twin sophomore co-eds, was elected to the honor society, which is limited to the upper tenth of the students in point of scholarship, and carries a strong affidavit of campus activities and personality along with the election.

He began his college education in 1907 when he studied at Oklahoma A. & M. College. Mason will be graduated in May with a degree from the College of Agriculture. He said the reason for his enrolling at Nevada was his desire to broaden his education. He left Oklahoma in 1908 to do surveying work.

PATENT OWNERS' POWERS LIMITED

Supreme Court Rules Monopoly Does Not Allow Dealer Control.

WASHINGTON, March 25.—(P) In a far-reaching decision, the supreme court ruled today that patent-owners may not extend their legal monopoly to control their products after they reach the dealers, and specifically may not impose restrictions that fix prices.

The case in point involved the Ethyl Gasoline Corporation, but Thurman Arnold, assistant attorney general in charge of anti-trust prosecutions, said that it went "far beyond the oil industry" and was "the most important decision on the subject of the use of patents to restrain trade that has ever been handed down by any court."

In its unanimous decision, the court held that the Ethyl Corporation was violating the Sherman anti-trust act by its system of licensing 123 refiners to make anti-knock fuel with its patented tetraethyl lead fuel.

The 123 refiners handle 88 per cent of all gasoline sold in this country. The licenses impose various restrictions upon their use of the fluid, one of which provides that the anti-knock gasoline must be sold at a certain fixed price increase over other fuel. Jobbers are required to apply for licenses through the refiners.

The decision, written by Justice Stone, said that these licenses went beyond mere protection of the ethyl patent monopoly and gave the corporation "dominion over the jobbers' business" and control of prices.

Another important ruling of the court today said that the road-casting field was "open to anyone" and that the Federal Communications Commission was under no obligation to protect existing radio stations from competition.

In this decision by Justice Roberts, the court found that the communications act "recognizes that radio waves are not common carriers and are not to be dealt with as such."

STREAMLINED UNIT WILL BE REVIEWED

Showout To See Horse and Mechanized Troops.

FT. OGLETHORPE, Ga., March 25.—(P) The sixth cavalry, first to combine horse and mechanized troops, will be reviewed Friday for the first time as a streamlined unit.

Major General Walter C. Showart, of Fort Benning, Ga., who will command the fourth army corps in spring maneuvers in Louisiana, will receive the review with Colonel John Milliken, commander of the cavalry.

The cavalry will establish another "first" in escorting Major General Showart, who will arrive by plane, from the airport to the fort by a motorcycle troop of 80 men. It will mark the first time an army officer in the United States has been received by a motorcycle escort.

The strength of the cavalry regiment recently was increased from 659 to 1,088 men. It is designed primarily for scouting and is scheduled to receive approximately 600 trailers, each to carry eight horses.

Boy, 10, With Two 'Fathers' Has Conference With Judge

What Was Said Kept Secret; Custody Battle Ends.

Ten-year-old Huntley Chapin Jr., principal figure in a bitter legal battle being waged for his custody by his two "fathers"—Huntley Chapin Sr., of Los Angeles, Cal., and Willard F. Cummings, of Atlanta—had his say yesterday but not for the voluminous record that has been taken in the case.

The attractive, well-mannered lad told his story to Judge E. E. Pomeroy in the privacy of the judge's chambers.

Just what he told the judge remains secret as both parties declined to discuss what was said behind those closed doors.

The lad was closeted with the judge for almost a half hour. He was brought to the courthouse by his step-father's attorney, Allen Watkins.

Bitter Testimony. Earlier in the day, Judge Pomeroy had closed the case after the introduction of numerous witnesses by both sides. The testimony was bitter in some instances and both Chapin, the father, and Cummings, the step-father, took the stand.

Chapin identified several letters which the boy's mother and his former wife, the late Mrs. Myrtice Chapin Cummings, had written him which showed that he had made generous contributions to his son's support.

One letter suggested a loan to defray heavy medical expenses resulting from the boy's serious illness. Snapshots of the boy were enclosed and the letters were signed, "With love, Myrtice."

The stepfather was offered as a witness to explain his arrest in 1938 on a drunk and disorderly charge.

Cummings in Fight. In rebuttal, Lindley Camp, attorney for Chapin, put Lieutenant C. L. Heath of the city police department on the stand to relate the story of the arrest. Heath testified that he arrested Cummings on the night of July 28 at a downtown garage after a fight in which Cummings hit a man.

A considerable part of the day's testimony was devoted to the boy's reaction to a three-hour visit which he had with his father—under court order—last Friday night.

After an aunt of the boy had testified that he cried and was upset, the present Mrs. Chapin, who accompanied her husband and the boy, testified that the boy was not the least bit upset but on the contrary appeared joyous and asked me about my son.

An affidavit signed by Dean Raimundo de Ovies of St. Philip's Episcopal cathedral was submitted by Cummings to show that he had been a good father. It set out that Cummings had developed the boy spiritually, mentally and physically in a most excellent manner.

WRONG NUMBER. LAKEWOOD, N. J., March 21.—(P)—"Come quick to the Clifton hotel," Fire Engine Driver John Hulseart heard an excited voice call over the telephone. Off raced Hulseart in a chemical truck, rushed into the lobby. "Oh," he was greeted by a guest. "I wanted a taxi. I must have gotten the wrong number."

Big 'Flash Bulbs' Of Picture-Takers Scare Whole City

MONTGOMERY, Ala., March 25.—(P)—Brilliant, lightning-like flashes, followed by thunderous crashes tonight, startled scores of Montgomery residents into calling a newspaper office—only to learn the disturbances were caused by picture-taking bombs.

One newspaper official likened the occasion to the time when Orson Wells put on a scary radio show in which a fictitious town was raided by "Martians," and panic resulted in many places.

The newspaper had advance notice that fliers from Maxwell Field, United States air corps tactical school, would make some aerial photographs with 25-pound "flash bulbs," but the public apparently didn't.

"Is the city being bombed?" "Where was the big explosion?" "Any reports on an earthquake?"

Those were some of the queries that came into the Montgomery Advertiser newsroom. Most callers said their windows were shaken by the "blasts."

Democratic Poll In Gilmer Keeps Roosevelt Ahead

Special to THE CONSTITUTION. ELLIJAY, Ga., March 25.—Roosevelt is far out ahead as choice for President, even for a third time, a poll of Ellijay and Gilmer county Democrats disclosed during the week end.

Though the county has approximately 1,000 voting Democrats, "the first 100" were taken as representative of the opinion of all.

The straw vote count showed: Roosevelt, 93; Hull, four; Farley, one; Garner, one, and McNutt, one.

Grownups 'Crash' Kiddies' Party

KIDDIES AT HEART It was tough on the youngsters who wanted to see what was what at the White House Easter egg roll yesterday, for wherever they looked, grownups towered. Mrs. Roosevelt is shown (left) surrounded by police as she toured the grounds. (Story on Page 9)

DARING That's the word for Captain U. A. Woodbury II and Don Hall, shown working on the flimsy 17-inch-wide canoe in which they, with Al Eastman, sailed 2,600 miles from Hawaii to Samoa.

SHORT STORY So a Massachusetts theater manager rigged a "camera trap" in the hope of snaring a burglar. So, officers say, a youth booked as Ernest J. F. Dupuis has been arrested.

DAMP Slightly on the watery side is the job this photog has tackled in the "Oceanarium" of Marineland, Fla., snapping those well-known bathing beauties (that is, from a fisherman's point of view).

BLOW, BLOW Yes, blow, blow, thou wintry wind, this cozy miss echoes old King Lear. She came all set to defy that wintry blast at the White House Easter egg roll. (Story on Page 9)

ANCIENT Also gigantic is this grotesque head unearthed by archaeologists in the state of Tabasco, Mexico. Eight feet and one inch high it looms, and measures 20 feet, 10 inches in circumference. Weight of this work by some forgotten Indian Michelangelo is estimated at 20 tons.

HAPPY Yes, sir, life is a song (that is, if baboons have an ear for music) for Lulu Belle these days in Dallas, Texas. She won't be snatching Clara Belle's babe any more. She has one all her own.

BRIGHT EYES Jeepers creepers! Where'dja get those peepers? This little Miss Beautiful—Hollace Osborn, of Long Island, N. Y.—hasn't reached that age where a streamlined roadster is absolutely the only transportation. No, this century-old carriage does nicely, thanks.

CROCY WITHDRAWS PLEA FOR APPEAL; TO ENTER PRISON

Former Partner in Bankrupt Brokerage House Will Surrender to U. S. Marshal Today.

A. J. Crocy, former partner in a bankrupt Atlanta brokerage house, who was found guilty in United States district court last November of mail fraud charges in connection with stock sales, yesterday signed a paper withdrawing his motion for an appeal and will surrender to United States Marshal Charles H. Cox this morning.

Crocy will be taken to the Atlanta federal penitentiary to begin a two-and-a-half-year sentence. He has been free under $2,500 bond.

His former partner and co-defendant, J. R. Rossignol, sentenced to serve four years on the same charges, will continue his fight for an appeal. He is under a $4,500 bond.

Partners in an Atlanta investment house, the men were indicted by a federal grand jury January 30, 1939, after the bankrupting of their business. They went on trial last October 19 and on November 1 were found guilty of 10 of the 11 counts of the indictment.

Their motion for a new trial was overruled by United States District Judge E. Marvin Underwood, who sentenced them January 15. Both appealed the jury's decision.

Rossignol and Crocy's attorneys took the position that all the firm's transactions were in good faith and that the partners did not profit by them. Their clients' troubles, they said, could be traced to the fall in the market in the autumn of 1937 that forced the partnership into involuntary bankruptcy.

ANNAPOLIS, Md., March 25.—(AP)—Easter bunnies in these parts were gnashing their teeth in sheer jealousy today—a hen belonging to Alvin D. Jones, Eastport, completely outclassed them in the Easter egg laying business.

Crash of Plane Is 'Broadcast' Play-by-Play

LOS ANGELES, March 25.—(AP)—Don Whillock, filling station attendant, saw an airplane faltering overhead so he breathlessly telephoned police:

"Send an ambulance and police car right away. A plane is crashing. There it goes now. It just crashed."

He sprinted three blocks to a vacant lot enveloped in a cloud of dust. Three men were looking over the wreckage.

"Anybody killed?" he asked.

"Nope," replied one of the men.

"Not a scratch. All we need is some gas and a new landing gear."

YOUTH ACQUITTED IN SLAYING CASE

Judge Says Grandfather Beat, Choked Boy.

MIAMI, Fla., March 25.—(AP)—Fifteen-year-old Miles Baker, who testified he shot his grandfather to death after being threatened for calling the aged man "Play-boy," was freed of a second-degree murder charge today.

Criminal Judge Ben Willard, who freed the boy with a simple pronouncement of "not guilty," later made this comment:

"The evidence speaks for itself. It has been shown that this boy was beaten and choked by his grandfather, while the man was drunk, ever since his grandmother died, or about three years." The youth had lived with his grandfather since the separation of his parents when he was two years old.

UPSIDE-DOWN FLAG ALARMS WATERFRONT

BALTIMORE, March 25.—(AP)—There was consternation on the waterfront today when the Hon-duran freighter Chirripo, loaded with bananas from Porto Cortez, came in, proudly displaying the United States flag—upside down. The position of the flag, sometimes a signal of disaster, brought quick inquiry. The slightly dismayed crew righted the emblem.

Driving Club To Inaugurate Informal Season on May 28

Among important social events of the late spring season will be the annual alfresco dinner-dance, to be held May 28, at the Piedmont Driving Club. This brilliant occasion, which heralds the approach of summer, will assemble several hundred members of Atlanta society and their out-of-town guests.

The affair will be held on the picturesque terrace of the club, where a colorful array of blooms will form a floral bower and a myriad of lighted Japanese lanterns will cast a soft glow on the guests as they dance to the music of a famous New York orchestra. For the occasion, which marks the opening of the informal season, the feminine guests will don graceful frocks of chiffon, while the masculine element will dance in white flannels and dark coats. Officers of the club include DeSales Harrison, president; Albert E. Thornton, vice president, and M. E. Kilpatrick, secretary. Members of the board are Hal F. Hertz, John W. Grant Jr., Lawrence Willet, Murray C. Shoun and James H. Franklin Jr.

Miss Oliver Fetes Miss Collison

Among interesting social affairs of yesterday was the luncheon at which Miss Jean Oliver was hostess in the Mirador Room at the Capital City Club, complimenting her cousin, Miss Aileen Collison, a student at the University of Pennsylvania, who is spending the spring holidays here.

The luncheon table which was verand with a handsome white cloth, was centered with a silver bowl filled with pastel colored spring flowers.

Invited for the occasion were Misses Margaret Palmer, Nancy Schwab, Selma Wit Wight, Jane Osburn, Elizabeth Groves, Julia Block, Margaret Harmon and Elizabeth Colley.

Final Parties Fete Bridal Pair

Miss Martha Hurt and her fiancé, Henry Heinz Jr., whose marriage will be an important event of this evening, will be honored today at the buffet breakfast to be given at 12:30 o'clock by Mrs. Charles Bickerstaff and her daughter, Miss Bright Bickerstaff, at their home on Lullwater road.

Spring flowers in colorful shades will be used as the artistic arrangements throughout the reception rooms and on the lace-covered table in the dining room.

Mrs. A. B. Simms, sister of Mrs. Bickerstaff, and Miss Emily Woodruff, of Columbus, will assist in entertaining.

Invited for the occasion are the members of the immediate families and out-of-town guests here to attend the wedding.

Miss Hurt and Mr. Heinz were central figures last evening at the rehearsal party given by the room-elect's brother and sister, Mr. and Mrs. William D. Owens, at their home on Lullwater Parkway for the members of the wedding party, families and out-of-town guests.

Mr. and Mrs. Henry Heinz Sr. and Mr. and Mrs. Forst Cameron assisted in entertaining.

The table in the dining room was covered with an ivory satin damask cloth and centered with a crystal and silver epergne filled with yellow and white calla lilies, tulips and snapdragons. Flanking this were three-branched silver candelabra holding lighted white tapers. Yellow and white spring flowers decorated the other reception rooms.

Miss Anne Suttles Honors Couple.

Among delightful affairs of last evening was the buffet supper at which Miss Anne Suttles was hostess at her home on Morningside drive, honoring Miss Caroline Candler, of Madison, and her fiancé, Lowry Hunt.

Mrs. J. B. Suttles and Mrs. L. N. Ragsdale, mother and grandmother of the hostess, and Mrs. Charles Candler, of Madison, mother of the honoree, assisted in entertaining. Mrs. John Baldwin poured coffee.

Lilies, gladioli and stocks, carrying out a green and white color motif, were used as the floral centerpiece on the lace-covered table in the dining room. Spring flowers in pastel shades decorated the other rooms throughout the home.

The guests included 35 friends of the honoree.

The Once Self-Conscious, Awkward Ginger Rogers Becomes The Miracle Girl of Hollywood

By Sheila Graham.

HOLLYWOOD, March 25.—Meet the miracle girl of Hollywood—Ginger Rogers. When Ginger alighted (1932) upon Hollywood she couldn't act worth a nickel; her skin was bad; her hair ditto; her left leg seemed slightly crooked; her speech was marred with an atrocious lisp; she was awkward and ill at ease. Today, Ginger's skin is okay; her hair is beautiful; both legs appear to be a perfect match; the lisp departed a long time ago from her speech; she is not awkward; she is perfectly at ease, and her acting in her latest picture, "Primrose Path," is worth at least a million dollars.

How did she do it? With discipline. In a city where all would-be stars must be on speaking terms with self-control and self-subjection, Ginger is the most self-controlled and subjected. Of course, Ginger was helped a lot by her mother, Mrs. Lela Rogers. Ambitious as Ginger is, her mother is yet more ambitious for her, and it was she who changed Ginger's voice and histrionics into the 100 per cent attraction and ability of today.

Until about a year ago, Ginger's mother lived with her in the hilltop home on Beverly Crest. The house commands a view of two canyons, and overlooks the mansion of Lew Ayres, from whom Ginger recently obtained a divorce, and that of Myrna Loy. The house and grounds cost Ginger about $150,000 and are surrounded by a high, white wall. There is a studio separate from the house—where Ginger practices her dancing. There is a championship tennis court, and a blue-tiled swimming pool with a high diving board. Instead of a bar, there is a complete fountain. Ginger can make every kind of Sunday and enjoys inventing new banana splits, etc.

The reason for Mrs. Rogers' departure was—according to Lew Ayres—that Ginger had "found herself." Prior to her mother's departure, Ginger hated to be alone, felt uncertain of herself. Now she enjoys solitude, and when Mrs. Rogers comes to stay a few days, she is strictly a guest, not the hostess. One of the major reasons, by the way, for the Rogers-Ayres split-up was the too constant presence of Mrs. Rogers. Another more important reason, as Lew now admits, was his own uncertain temper and the period of doldrums through which he was then passing because of his career.

Ginger effected her complexion transformation via a Spartan diet (with the exception of that soda fountain, and even there she enjoys making the confections more than eating them). Her leg was brought into line via specialized exercise. Her self-confidence arrived with her new complexion, new figure and, above all, with her success as a dramatic actress—beginning with "Vivacious Lady," continuing with "Bachelor Mother" and now, her best performance to date, "Primrose Path." This latter is a must-see picture.

Ginger—her real name is Virginia McMath—was born in Independence, Mo., 28 years ago. She celebrates her 29th birthday anniversary in July. Her nickname, Ginger, has nothing to do with the color of her hair (which is really light-brown), but is the result of a childish lisp "Ginia." Her father and mother separated when Ginger was a youngster; and mother and daughter had tough sledding until Ginger won a Charleston competition in Texas, went to New York and clicked in musical comedy on Broadway. "I came to Hollywood to escape being a dancer," she told me while making her last dancing picture with Fred Astaire. She appeared in a lot of bad B's until "Flying Down to Rio," in which she was billed with Astaire below Gene Raymond and Dolores Del Rio.

Miss Rogers is probably the least interested in clothes of any feminine star in Hollywood. Her favorite uniform consists of slacks and a fluffy sweater. She seldom uses make-up, except when she steps out, which is as seldom as possible. She detests night clubs, but enjoys premieres, for which she dresses to the hilt. She is by no means the life of the party and would rather listen than talk to her guests or solo companion, although she has been known to act-up at a party and do some juggling with a couple of forks.

She is an exquisite ballroom dancer—my authority for this is Billy Bakewell, who is the best friend of both Ginger and Lew Ayres. At the moment Hollywood is tying Ginger romantically with Howard Hughes and Walter Plunkett. To date her romance with Hughes consists of a couple of dinners and a luncheon. As for dress-designer Plunkett, he supplies Ginger's need of an escort to premieres. I have been told on good authority that Ginger's attitude toward her masculine escorts is sisterly or daughterly, according to the age of the man.

Ginger lives in good style. She employs a colored personal maid, a cook, and a chauffeur-gardener. She owns a large limousine and prefers to drive around in a station wagon. She contrives to bank a large part of her $4,000 weekly salary. She confines her feminine friendships to the studio make-up girl, her hairdresser, and stand-in. Between pictures, Ginger likes to play at hide-and-seek with her studio. She keeps her whereabouts a secret, and it is only when she comes back from Honolulu, Lake Arrowhead, or Mexico that her bosses know where they could have found her. Sometimes they could find her at home—if they had but known.

It's quite something to hear Lew Ayres discuss the "new" Ginger. He admires and respects her. He talks about her as though she were in his life, not out of it. He enjoys his present bachelor status, but regrets the what-might-have-been.

There's No Increased Deposit Of Calcium In 'Old' Bones

Dr. William Brady.

More than 99 per cent of the total amount of calcium in the body is in the skeleton. There is approximately 21-22 pounds of calcium (lime) in the body of an adult. Muscles contain some calcium, blood contains some, nervous tissues contain some. The richest food sources of calcium are milk, cheese, egg yolk, nuts, vegetables, greens. The body requires a daily intake of approximately 10 grains of calcium daily (for the adult), nearly twice that much for children in their growing years (8 to 18 years). A quart of milk contains approximately 18 grains of calcium. Sunshine vitamin D, so-called because direct sunshine on naked skin generates vitamin D in the body, is necessary to promote assimilation and utilization of calcium in the body.

A frequent question in the mail concerns the relation of calcium or lime to old age, senility, arteriosclerosis, high blood pressure. There is considerable evidence that most people get too little calcium, or at least fail to assimilate and retain enough of the calcium in food to maintain optimal health. In some instances this may be due to shortage in the daily intake of vitamin D, or to insufficient exposure of the body to sunlight, but generally it is attributed to the deficiency of retained food in calcium. For instance there is over three grains of calcium (lime) in a pound of wheat, less than one grain in a pound of refined white flour.

The fact that the bones of aged persons are more fragile than the bones of young persons is generally misinterpreted as due to too much calcium or lime in the bones of old age. That is not true. The bones of the elderly person become more fragile because they have undergone more or less atrophy, wasting, shrinkage in substance, hence are thinner, not as strong. There is no increased deposit of calcium in the old bones. Perhaps old bones are more dried out, contain less water, than young bones. The hard bone substance of a healthy young person contains about 25 per cent by weight of water.

Another popular misapprehension is that foods containing calcium or calcium compounds used to supplement the diet, may cause hardening of the arteries, or high blood pressure. There is no basis for the notion, either scientific or clinical.

In short, it is the consensus of medical opinion today that a large daily intake of calcium (lime), from the consumption of more liberal proportions of the calcium-rich foods—milk, cheese, peas, beans, peanuts, nuts, root vegetables, greens—tends to prolong youth or postpone the coming of old age.

The lime in hard water is at least not objectionable if the water is otherwise satisfactory to drink, whether it is utilized by the body as well as lime in food or not.

Incidentally, it certainly does not cause high blood pressure to drink all the water one wants, in any circumstances.

QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS. Use Your Own Adrenaline. I had been taking the soluble potassium chloride you recommended only a few days when my head cleared and for the first time in many years I have now been months without a snuffle. It is like magic! How do you account for such an effect from a salt which we do or should get in many common foods? (G. S. B.)

Answer: Adrenaline, physiologists believe, liberates potassium from the tissues and the potassium does the work. When potassium becomes depleted or rather the tissues become depleted of potassium, adrenaline no longer produces its characteristic effects. So a dose or two of potassium chloride enables your own adrenaline to function, correcting the disturbance caused by allergy. Not just anything labeled potassium chloride; I recommend only SOLUBLE potassium chloride. Detail on how to use it in monograph, "Relief for Allergy"—send stamped envelope bearing your address and ask for it.

A Good Way To Stay Young Is To Forget Old Age

By Ida Jean Kain.

You can't just walk up to a beauty and ask how on earth she manages to stay so young looking—although it's a safe guess that every woman who has seen Ruth Chatterton since her recent return to the stage has been dying to! You put the question this way: How do you think the average woman can keep from aging so rapidly?

And here's the answer—"It's the mental attitude, more than anything else," says Miss Chatterton, who does not look a minute over 28. "If a woman does not think too much about growing old, but is not afraid of it, she doesn't seem to age quite so fast." In other words, if you want to stay young, don't worry about growing old!

Several years ago she had her theories corroborated. At a social function in France, her escort pointed out a woman who had just entered the room as "the most attractive woman I have seen in France!" It was Gabrielle Dorziat, the famous French actress and beauty, who was then in her 60s.

A few years later, Miss Chatterton and Miss Dorziat met again, this time at a luncheon, where none of the other women was over 40. Miss Dorziat didn't look any older than she had on the other occasion, and she looked as young as any woman interesting until she is at least 35. Consequently, the Latin woman does not worry about aging and does not feel compelled to fight it. She even likes getting along! She pays particular attention to grooming, dresses simply but with chic, and faces the years with security and serenity. They never worry about growing old.

There is no question but that worry adds years to a woman's appearance. And doctors tell us that worry and strain greatly affect the health—which is another important factor in looks. It's a vicious circle! The more we worry the worse we look and the more we worry!

Ruth Chatterton's mode of living has enabled her to work out her theory successfully. She enjoys outdoor activity. She enjoys riding horseback—a two or three-hour jaunt is usually her speed. But more than anything else she likes flying. For five years she has been a pilot's license, and when she isn't up in the air, she is on the flying field talking with the mechanics and getting sun, fresh air and relaxation all at the same time.

She doesn't "diet" because her weight never varies—and her weight never varies because she eats the right foods! Sometimes she drinks three quarts of milk a day. She eats fruits and vegetables from preference. She does not touch sweets.

Activity and the right foods give her a perfect figure: Weight, 117 pounds for her height of five feet, four inches; bust, 35 inches; waist, 25 inches; hips, 36 inches. If you want to know her age, you'll have to look it up. All I'll tell you is, she hasn't any legal right to look quite as young as she does!

MY DAY: World's Fair Exhibits To Interest Women

By Eleanor Roosevelt.

WASHINGTON.—It is time for us to make our plans for visits again this summer to the two world fairs. Some of us who live in the east may not be able to go to San Francisco, but we certainly should get to the New York World's Fair this year. It was demonstrated last year that a great many people came because of its educational values. There are to be two exhibitions this year which I think will be of special interest to women.

One is to be called "The World of Fashion of 1940." The building will have a complete picture of the major fashion trends. There will be a hall of textiles, a parade of labels (nationally known creators and retailers), and exhibit of shoes and stockings, an exhibit of furs, sports clothes, bathing suits, etc. In the small theaters, living actors will show the fashions while they entertain their audiences with amusing skits. These will be varied by movies and lectures and talks by leaders in the fashion world. Of course, this building will have a restaurant and a garden so we women can spend the day. Doesn't this new opening sound attractive to you?

The other new exhibition will be called "America at Home." A score of prominent decorators, designers and architects have accepted an invitation to submit designs for original rooms which will dramatize the extensive new home furnishing and decorative arts exhibit. It is especially interesting that these exhibitors have all achieved unusual success in expressing characteristically American backgrounds for one or more geographical sections of our country. The object is to bring to our attention that America can produce through its handicrafts and in its home furnishing industries which are distinctive and therefore appropriate to its own surroundings.

A jury of men and women prominent in the fields of art, merchandise, design, education and museums will pass upon the merit of manufactured products and designs here exhibited. We can see again the 15 houses in the "Town of Tomorrow," which will use American materials and will be redesigned and redecorated. These two exhibits are mainly conceived and managed by women, and they certainly cater to women's interests.

Last year the President was kept from going to the San Francisco Fair, but nothing should keep them from getting there this year. I hope, if he goes, that the Indian exhibit will be there again, for that was one of the unforgettable sights.

Yesterday I lunched with the 73rd Congressional Club, greeted two groups of high school students, and had the pleasure of seeing the film, "Rebecca," of which I shall tell you more tomorrow.

Dishes Utilizing Leftovers Appear in Appetizing Forms

By Sally Saver.

An ingenious cook warmly welcomes left-overs, because she knows that many, with a deft trick, are turned into culinary triumphs. Often a dish utilizing a left-over is more delicious than the food was in its original setting.

It is not possible always to make food come out even, nor is it desirable to do so. Chickens, roasts and vegetables left from one meal make second appearances in appetizing form at very low cost. There will be meats, ham, chicken or roast left from the week-end and here's a Swedish Dinner Ring which will present them with the dash of a premiere!

Swedish Dinner Ring. Baking powder biscuit dough. 2 cups cooked meat, ground. 1 tablespoon onion, ground. 1 pimento, ground. 1 small green pepper, ground. Salt and pepper. Meat stock or milk. Roll out biscuit dough to 1-4 inch thickness. Mix meat with seasonings and add enough stock or milk to moisten. Spread meat mixture on the biscuit dough and roll like a jelly roll. Form into a ring and place on greased baking sheet. With a pair of scissors, cut diagonal slashes toward the center, but not quite to the center, at intervals of 2 inches. Turn the cut section flat on the tin. Place 1-2 slice of bacon in each slash. Bake in a 375-degree oven for about 30 minutes. This ring and other meat dishes such as leaves, may be served with a pimento sauce made like this:

Pimento Sauce. 2 tablespoons flour. Salt and pepper. 2 tablespoons butter or margarine, melted. 1 cup milk, scalded. 1-3 cup pimento, cut fine. Blend flour and seasonings with melted butter. Add hot milk gradually. Cook, stirring constantly, until mixture thickens. Fold in finely chopped pimento. Questions about foods, recipes, quantity buying, or serving will be answered personally by Sally Saver. Write or phone The Constitution or WA. 6565.

Mother Feels Her Children Should Move From Home

By Caroline Chatfield.

Dear Miss Chatfield: Four of us live at home with our parents and our ages range from 22 to 26. All of us are self-supporting. Our home life is terrible because of a blind uncle who lives with us. He drinks like a fish and keeps up a row day and night with my father. The boys get out at night and miss most of the mess, but sister and I catch it along with mother. Sister is on the verge of a nervous breakdown and I have lost 30 pounds because of home conditions. If we are bold enough to have a date sister and I are humiliated by drunken brawls and noises. Mother suggests that we write to you and ask if you think we should stay at home and take this when we are earning our living and could support ourselves elsewhere.

BEWILDERED. Answer: Why should you stay at home? The four of you could set up housekeeping and have an ideal existence. Even if the brothers don't want to leave with you, you and your sister could swing a small apartment or, for that matter, take rooms nearby where you could see your mother and at the same time sidestep the brawl that the father and uncle keep up.

Hard on mother to be separated from her chief source of comfort, her children? Yes, but a real mother will gladly undergo that sacrifice for the satisfaction of seeing her children released from a situation that is ruining their lives. No doubt the bitterest phase of the whole matter to her is her inability to make a happy home for them. She knows that every day spent in the mare's nest reduces the chances of her daughters having happy homes of their own, since men don't come a-courting to mare's nests.

When we hear all the wails that go up about women's entering business and upsetting the masculine apparel we wonder if, after all, it wasn't a big mistake. But when we come across a story like this we say it's just as it should be: daughters are no longer doomed to live under parental roofs that crush them, having their youth blighted by unbearable conditions which they didn't create and can't change. So long as they make their own bread and butter they can eat it in peace, have their friends in to share it without being humiliated by roughneck relatives.

CAROLINE CHATFIELD.

Today's Charm Tip.

Be careful not to carry to excess that mannerism of yours for which you'll be most complimented, as the way you laugh, the way you wrinkle your nose, etc.

Tea Compliments Miss Houston And Miss Minor

One of the loveliest parties of the week assembling members of the subdeb contingent of society was the tea at which Mrs. C. Robert Mitchell and her daughter, Miss Alice Mitchell, entertained yesterday in compliment of Miss Ailene Minor and her attractive young guest, Miss Charlotte Houston, of Larchmont, N. Y. Miss Houston and her parents, Mr. and Mrs. W. M. Houston, and her sister, Anne, arrived Friday from Larchmont to visit Mr. and Mrs. C. V. Minor and their daughter at their Pine Valley road home.

The tea was held at the Capital City Country Club at Brookhaven and assembled 125 members of the schoolgirl set. Green pottery urns filled with long sprays of forsythia adorned the reception rooms of the club. The beautifully appointed tea table, featuring a springtime motif of pale green and yellow, was covered with a green organza cloth bordered with a ruffle of organza. Gracing the center was a crystal bowl filled with yellow and white tulips and jonquils, and at either end of the table were crystal candelabra holding tall white tapers.

A group of Miss Mitchell's young friends, who assisted in entertaining, included Misses Fritz Yundt, Jeannette Palmer, Ellen Quarterman, Mary Ann Patterson, Kate Holmes, Mildred Flowers, Alice Dulaney, Laura Burgess, Peggy Porter, Betty Blount, Emily Pruitt and Caroline Orr.

PINK DOGWOOD and moss green

Did you ever see pink dogwood blooming? The deep, soft pink of the inside of a seashell . . . the rosy flush of the bottom of a baby's foot . . . that's the color. Put it against the lushness of moss green. It's so pretty . . . so young . . . so new! There are pink dogwood frocks with little coats of Moss Green. There are gloves, bags, jewelry . . . all dyed the same rosy pinkness . . . well, there's no earthly use being repetitious, but we believe in Pink Dogwood and Moss Green . . . and so will you! To coin a cliché . . . it's wonderful!

Way "Build-Up" Helps Will Interest Women

The cause of a woman's periodic suffering from headache, irritability, crank-like pain, may be functional dysmenorrhea due to a malnutrition, a condition that is often helped by CARDUI.

Principal way CARDUI helps is by stimulating appetite and the flow of gastric juices. Thus it may aid digestion; help build up a woman's strength, energy and nerve-force; so increase physical resistance to periodic discomfort.

It also helps reduce periodic distress for many who take it a few days before and during "the time." Your confidence in CARDUI is invited by its 50 years of popularity. (adv.)

$5,000 TOURNEY AGAIN DELAYED

GREENSBORO, N. C., March 25.—(P)—The tournament committee and Fred Corcoran, P. G. A. tournament manager, decided today upon another one-day postponement of the second round of the $5,000 Greensboro open golf tournament.

An all-day snowfall yesterday blanketed the fairways. Although a bright sun beamed this morning, the temperature was 28 degrees and the snow remained.

Weather permitting, play will be resumed with an 18-hole round tomorrow and the final 36 holes Wednesday.

Benny Hogan, of White Plains, N. Y., and Clayton Heather, of Linville, were tied at the end of Saturday's opening round with 69 each, two under par.

THE MOST ENTHUSIASTIC GOLFER.

There are golfers and golfers, enthusiastic and otherwise, but you would have to go a long way to find one who loves the game better than W. D. (Doc) Tumlin.

Doc is a businessman and he does not spend every day on the golf course. He travels a lot. He is a busy man. But when there is a let-up, you will find Doc playing or talking golf.

Doc has taken lessons from almost every pro he knows. And he knows a lot of them.

He has his own theories about the golf swing. If he can help a friend, score better, Doc will give up playing to do it.

To get over his theory of swing, Doc once handed a young lady a dog harness and had her swing it. A few months later

TO WITHDRAW $18,000 OFFER, SAYS BREADON

It's Principle of Thing, Boss Avers; 'Baloney!' Shouts Joe.

ST. PETERSBURG, Fla., March 25.—(P)—The war of nerves between holdout Joe Medwick and the St. Louis Cardinals is getting really serious.

The club has set Tuesday night as a "deadline" and if the slugging outfielder is not signed on the dotted line by that time it was said his $18,000 offer will be withdrawn. The move was interpreted as a warning the club isn't fooling.

Joe has his neck bowed and there was no indication he would back down—or even compromise—on demands for restoration of his 1938 salary of $20,000.

Following another unsuccessful meeting today, General Manager Branch Rickey said:

"We have reached a stage of temporary finality and this was my last conference with Medwick."

TO BREAK CAMP. The Cardinals will break camp here tomorrow and if Medwick and the bosses fail to get together, solution of the problem will be postponed indefinitely.

President Sam Breadon will be on his way to Cuba with the team; Rickey will be starting on a tour of his minor league camps, and Medwick will be left out in the cold to run the risk of suspension—10 days after the opening of the season.

It's the principle of the thing—not the mere $2,000 difference, which is virtually pin money to them, insists the Redbird.

"It's thousands of dollars—phooie," Breadon is reported to have said.

HATCHING FOLDOUTS. It isn't the money, he declared, but a question of hatching holdout ideas among other players next year.

Baloney—shouts Medwick. "If I give in," Breadon argues, "the boys will plague me a year from now, especially if we win the pennant."

And the Cards are conceded a spanking good chance of winning the pennant—with Medwick.

Medwick, who led the National league in batting and won the most valuable player award in 1937, says he likes the Cardinal organization and does not want to be traded. But he thinks he has been "too fair" with the management.

He asked permission to work out with the squad today, but since the club has an iron-clad rule that no unsigned player can practice with the team, this permission was refused. He has been trying to keep in condition by playing golf.

C. Gilbert Will Open Season for Dodgers

SANFORD, Fla., March 25.—(P)—Charles Gilbert, young former outfielder of the Nashville baseball club of the Southern association, will not be returned to the club by Brooklyn's Dodgers, President Fay Murray, of the Vols, said today.

Returning from a conference at Clearwater with Dodger Boss Larry McPhail, Murray said Gilbert, sold to Brooklyn last fall, would open the season with the Dodgers in Cleveland. Murray quoted manager Leo Durocher as saying Gilbert was "the best outfielder Brooklyn has."

Snow Postpones North-South Meet

PINEHURST, N. C., March 25.—(P) Opening of the 38th annual north and south women's golf tournament was postponed today because greens and fairways of the course were covered with snow.

The 18-hole qualifying round will be played tomorrow.

Mrs. Estelle Lawson Page, of Chapel Hill, 1939 winner, will defend her title. Other entries include: Dorothy Kirby, of Atlanta; Jean Bauer, of Providence, R. I.; and Jeanne Cline, of Bloomington, Ill.

Columbus To Honor 3 Georgia Captains

COLUMBUS, Ga., March 25.—(P)—Columbus alumni of the University of Georgia will stage a dinner April 17, honoring the three Columbus boys now captaining Georgia athletic teams. They are Sonny Swift, 1940 golf team leader; James Skipworth, 1940 football captain, and Dan Kirkland, of the 1941 basketball five.

Vanderbilt Seeks Kirwan's Brother

LOUISVILLE, Ky., March 25.—(P)—Pat Kirwan, assistant manual High football coach, said today he had promised Vanderbilt University officials an answer by Wednesday to an offer to be freshman grid coach.

Kirwan returned here last night after conferring with Vanderbilt officials at Nashville, Tenn. He is a brother of Ab Kirwan, the University of Kentucky head football coach.

BONELLI ENTERS HIS DOG IN SHOW

Opera Star Coming Here To Put His Great Dane in Competition.

When Richard Bonelli, famous Metropolitan Opera baritone, comes to Atlanta this week end, it will not be to show off his voice, but his dog.

Yes, Bonelli is a great dog fancier, and he is coming to our town Friday to enter his Great Dane, Danhall by name, in the Atlanta Kennel Club's 28th annual dog show.

This comes from John F. Klegg, secretary of the Atlanta Kennel Club, who received a telegram from Helen Mobert, of the National Broadcasting Company, yesterday.

Mr. Bonelli is the only opera star who personally shows his own dog at the big dog shows over the country, Mr. Klegg informs.

The big show will last two days, Friday and Saturday of this week, at 489 Peachtree street.

MAHER IS PLACED ON RETIRED LIST

Johnny Maher, Atlanta boy, who is the property of the Houston Texas league club, has been put on the Houston voluntarily retired list by Judge Bramham, president of the National Association of Professional Baseball Leagues.

After having a great season with the Portsmouth (Ohio) Middle Atlantic loop club in 1938, the St. Louis Cards sent Johnny to Houston last spring. Illness kept him from training with the Houston team last spring, and he remained here all summer.

Maher, who is among the top bracket bowlers of Atlanta, decided during the winter to give up professional baseball, and entered business college here. Only last week did Bramham sanction his application for voluntary retirement.

for the open. He, Frank Brown and I had lunch together and played eight holes in the rain. We were a bit color blind that day and changed Frank's name to Green.

But let's get back to the table and talk.

Doc was talking about swinging, and he brought out an interesting illustration on the subject.

"You've seen those big colored fellows driving a spike into rock," Doc said. "They use sledge hammers. There's a little fellow sitting there turning the spike every time they hit it. He has to turn that spike with his fingers."

"His hand isn't more than two or three inches from the top of the spike. One miss and there wouldn't be any hand. It would be smashed to pulp."

"Yet all day long those big fellows swing and the little man turns the spike. They don't miss, either."

"They use a natural swing. It's a lazy sort of thing. The hammer rises and falls in steady rhythm. Bang! goes one. Bang! goes the other. And the little fellow doesn't bat an eye. He knows they won't miss."

"Well, that's the way it is in golf, too. Just swing and everything is all right."

"Getting back to the fellows driving the spike, though. Just go over and tell them they aren't pivoting enough. Tell them they aren't holding their sledge hammers the right way."

"Yes, sir, just do that if you want to cause an accident to happen."

Madigan Will Coach Loyola, Paper Says

BERKELEY, Cal., March 25.—(UP)—The Berkeley Gazette said today it had learned from an unimpeachable source that Edward Patrick (Slip) Madigan, ousted St. Mary's College football coach, has accepted the position of head coach at Loyola University in Los Angeles.

The Gazette said Madigan went to Los Angeles last week and decided Friday to accept the Loyola job.

Madigan was not available at his home for comment. It was rumored that he was dickering with Loyola authorities.

Angry Debate Flares as Group In House Approves NYA Fund

Georgians Figure in Clash Over Leanings of Aubrey Williams.

WASHINGTON, March 25.—(P)—A resolution authorizing an $85,000 appropriation for the National Youth Administration was approved by the house rules committee today after an angry debate on the question whether or not Aubrey Williams, NYA head, and Leopold Stokowski, the orchestra leader, lean toward Communism.

Representative Cox, Democrat, Georgia, started the debate by suggesting an amendment to forbid payment of any of the funds to Williams. He said that a special house committee which investigated the WPA had received testimony that Williams "consorted with Communists."

Representative Tarver, Democrat, Georgia, chairman of an appropriations subcommittee which considered the NYA resolution, replied that he was satisfied that the NYA chief was not a Communist.

He described him as "an idealist and dreamer" who perhaps "needs to be guided and restrained."

Representative Fish, Republican, New York, commented that he considered Williams to be "the most dangerous man in the government."

Stokowski's name was brought in by Representative Taber, Republican, New York, who asserted that Williams was aiding in supplying musicians for a good will tour of South America which the Philadelphia orchestra leader is arranging.

Declaring that Stokowski belonged to several alleged Communist organizations, Taber said Williams was "planning to take 100 American youths and turn them over to a man whose record is Communist."

Chairman Sabath, Democrat, Illinois, challenged Taber's statement, contending none of the organizations to which Taber referred were Communist.

Conducted Auditions. Tarver said Williams had asserted that the NYA had spent $2,600 conducting auditions for musicians to qualify for the South American tour, but that otherwise no NYA funds were involved in the venture.

"I think he made a mistake," the Georgian added, "and we have written into the bill a provision that will prevent the NYA in the future from serving as an employment agency."

Representative Smith, Democrat, Virginia, said he was impressed by Williams' frankness, but added, "I am not convinced he hasn't Communist leanings."

The NYA's appropriation also was discussed on the house floor when three Democrats—Fitzpatrick, New York; Johnson, Oklahoma, and Collins, Mississippi—urged that it be given $100,000, the same amount it received last year.

DETROIT, March 25.—(P)—John J. Hettege, State Boxing Commission chairman, said today March 29-April 1, with the LaGrange First Primitive Baptist church as host. Sessions will be held Friday night, Saturday and Sunday morning and night, Elder E. B. Seckinger, of the host church, announced.

TRAIL'S END

Sheriff Lawson Threatens To Arrest Jim, But Anne Says Jim Shot in Self-Defense

By William MacLeod Raine.

SYNOPSIS.

As Anne Eliot steps from the stage coach on Blanco's broad main street, there is a pistol shot. Jim Silcott's hat is whisked from his head, but the editor of the "Pewee Horn Sentinel" recovers it before running lightly to the doorway of an adobe house. Buck Sneve, a Hat T rider, levels his gun again but he drops dead an instant before the door closes behind Silcott. This gun play had followed the appearance in the Trail's End with his foreman, Jud Prentiss, and three other Hat T riders. Jud Prentiss, who had been accused of double-crossing Russell Mosely, his employer, in connection with the Armijo land-grant feud, Jesse's younger brother Phil had entered and refused to leave without Jesse and when Jud was about of him, Silcott, waiting for the game, asked if Mosely's orders included beating up the boy. Jud warned Jim that he was courting trouble and turned to play his quiet on Jesse till he dropped with a bullet in the back. The Hat T riders then left and lay in wait for Silcott. Anne Eliot is the niece of Carl Rogers, editor of the "Sentinel," and it was after he was shot from ambush for opposing Mosely in the land-grant feud that Silcott took over the job. Ma Russell, Anne's housekeeper, gets into the office. As she walks she tells Rogers that she inherited the "Sentinel" from her uncle Silcott had written her that Rogers had died but when she told him he was murdered, she says Jim must leave, she can't be responsible for his safety. NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY.

INSTALLMENT IX.

"Yes. The fact is that he had all the land he needed and was not interested in this great tract. After it was given to him he did not want it. This is proved by what followed." The Governor later carved slices out of the grant and gave them to other settlers, with no protest from Gandara. Later, when Don Jose succeeded Megares as Governor and captain general of the province, he officially indorsed grants out of the tract, not as from him personally, but as from the crown. This seems to me conclusive evidence that he had abandoned his claim. His heirs took the same view, for they made no effort to hold any part of the grant. Purchasers did not even consider the Gandara grant as a cloud on the title when they bought from Aguilar's sons. When Russ Mosely went down to Mexico City and for a song got a quit claim deed from the Gandaras, the general opinion was that he was buying a dead horse, but he has gone into court with documents—forged ones, in my opinion—and is pushing to oust those in possession."

"Is the Hat T ranch on the old grant?"

"Not the original ranch, but a large part of the range is in it."

Rufe Jelks and a heavy-set man with cold bulbous eyes walked back through the building to the rear room.

Silcott nodded to the man. "Miss Eliot, this is Sheriff Lawson," he said. He added, ironically, "I suppose the sheriff has come to find out who destroyed your property last night so he can arrest them."

"As a matter of fact, I came to investigate the killing of Buck Sneve," he said bluntly.

"I reckon you know the story as well as I do, Lawson," Silcott replied. "Prentiss and a bunch of Hat T men attacked me and in self-defense I was forced to shoot Sneve."

"Not quite the way I heard the story, Jim," the sheriff answered. "How did you hear it?"

"The sheriff looked the girl over before he answered. He was surprised at the question. He did not see how she came into this business."

"I heard that Jim here lay in wait for Prentiss and attacked him."

"Well, you'll be glad to know that isn't true," Anne told him. "I was there when the shooting started. I was there when Mr. Silcott while he was crossing the street. He ran into the doorway of an adobe house to escape. They kept firing at him, and the man who was killed called to the others that they had got him and ran forward. It was after this man Sneve had fired again from the middle of the road that he was hit."

"There were you standing, Miss Eliot?" the sheriff asked.

"Beside the stagecoach. In front of the office. I could see what differently folks see the same happened."

"You'd be surprised, miss, how things," Lawson said smoothly. "Some who saw this difficulty tell me Silcott started it."

"Would they be Jud Prentiss and the Hat T hands?" Rufe asked. Lawson turned his cold hard eyes on Jelks. "You in on this, Rufe?"

Jelks addressed his answer to Anne. "The sheriff is a mite friendly to Russ Mosely, who nominated and elected him. You can't blame a politician for that."

The officer flushed angrily. "That's not true. But I aim to get to the bottom of this thing."

Jim put a hand on the arm of his friend. "I'll do the talking if you don't mind, Rufe. The sheriff is quite right. You're not in this."

To Lawson he said, "That's all I ask, sir. Dig up the facts. The fuse started at the Trail's End an hour earlier. Prentiss and one of the Hat T riders were running on Jess Lamprey. That was none of my business. But the kid brother of Lamprey came in and tried to get his brother out of the jam. He wouldn't leave without his brother, and Jud started to beat him up. I told Jud to let the boy alone. We had words. Jim grabbed Jess and quitted him, then stomped out of the place. Probably they started drinking again and decided to get me."

"That's your story," the sheriff said.

"The one Russ tells will be different," Jim said evenly. "By the way, what is the one he has cooked up?"

Lawson looked at him, hard hostility in his gaze. "How would I know? I haven't seen Mr. Mosely."

"I expected he would have reached town by this time and would be giving out orders," Jim said.

Resentment flared in the prominent eyes. "That's an insult, Silcott. I don't take orders from him or anybody else. I've a good mind to arrest you right now."

"At your service," Silcott answered.

"Wait a minute," Anne faced Lawson, a flag of angry color in her cheeks.

"If you do I'll have a poster printed telling the truth and have it hung up all over town."

Sheriff Lawson glared at the girl, letting the import of this sink into his mind. That would not do at all. He would be running for office again in the spring and he did not want to alienate a large block of voters who might, for sentimental reasons, resent what would seem to be an attack on the credibility of this very attractive witness. Mosely would want him to go slow if she came into the picture.

"Have you a particular interest in this young man?" Lawson asked, and let his voice drag slightly. Anne flushed at the implication. "I have an interest in justice, but perhaps you wouldn't understand that," she retorted. "These men were trying to kill Mr. Silcott. If he is arrested I will make that known widely."

The sheriff changed his tone. "I am only trying to get at the truth, Miss Eliot," he told her. "At the present I have no intention whatever of arresting Jim. He irritated me with his insinuation that I take orders from Mosely; any honest man would have been irritated. I take it that there is a coroner's inquest you will be a witness."

"Of course."

"That will be fine," Lawson's unctuous campaign smile included them all. "I'll be saying 'Adios,' boys. See you later."

He turned and walked out of the building.

"Just the same he had orders to arrest you," Rufe said. He added, chuckling, "Miss Eliot, you sure spiked his guns."

"Yes, he backed off as if you were poison ivy," Silcott laughed. "I'm certainly much obliged to you."

"He as good as told me I was lying when I said you didn't fire first," Anne said tartly. "I wasn't going to let him back me down."

After a pause, she said, "Why was Mosely's ranch foreman bullying the Lampreys? Is this Mosely their enemy, too?"

Girl, 15, Likes Private Bath, Sues School for Own Shower

LOS ANGELES, March 25.—(UP)—The "battle of the baths" was sent to the showers today when Judge Roy Rhodes abruptly adjourned until July 1 the injunction suit brought by Joan Lawrence, 15-year-old school girl, who prefers her ablutions in private.

F. F. Gaulano, counsel for Joan, refused to accept the compromise offer of Alhambra High school officials who promised to install five private baths to meet Joan's protest. The offer, he said, involved a promise on his part not to institute additional similar suits against the school.

The attorney instructed the 16 girls who gathered in the courtroom to report to their gym classes in street clothes and not to undress until they were accommodated with private baths.

"We can seek redress back in court if matters don't progress to our liking," he told the mothers and fathers who crowded around him.

EXPERIMENTS YIELD BETTER SUGAR CANE

New Variety Termed Highly Resistant to Mosaic Disease.

CAIRO, Ga., March 25.—(P)—You may enjoy chewing your sugar cane more now.

That's the hope of sugar plant investigators of the United States Department of Agriculture, who have just completed distribution of this season's supply of seed cane of a new variety. It was developed at the Federal Experiment Station here and is designed to taste better, peel easier and "softer on the teeth."

Probably more important is its highly-developed resistance to mosaic, a virus disease that almost ruined the cane syrup industry of the south many years ago, says B. A. Belcher, assistant agronomist in charge of the Cairo Experiment Station.

The old mosaic-infected varieties, known as "red," "green" and "home purple," have continued as the chief supply of chewing cane. E. W. Blandie, of Washington, principal pathologist in charge of sugar plant investigations, says these varieties are

But W. M. McKesson, counsel for the school board, warned that the girls might be transferred to another school.

"The matter was left in the hands of the school board to work out a solution for both sides," he said. "The girls will use the facilities that we provide or transfer to another school."

Gymnasium classes are compulsory in California schools and in many schools large public showers are provided for the students; in others, private stalls are used.

McKesson said that "mass bathing" would not be abolished.

The controversy started when Joan said that public bathing violated her "right of privacy." She considered it "immoral" to undress, run 40 or 50 feet with only a towel thrown around her and shower with 60 to 100 other girls.

In the high school she formally attended, private showers were provided.

"heavily infected with mosaic and constitute a m-nace" to some new varieties that "may be growing on the same farm for syrup making."

Seed cane of the latest variety for chewing have been distributed to state experiment stations and county agents in the major cane areas. The distribution is expected to continue from season to season on an increasing scale.

Most of the sugar cane produced in the Cairo territory is grown for syrup. Most of it in Louisiana and parts of Florida is produced for sugar. Many farmers throughout the cane belt also have had smaller tracts of "chewing cane" for years.

SINGING IN BATHTUB SAVES WEAR ON TOWEL

Singing in the bathtub, despite the wear and tear on the neighbor's nerves, has been recommended to save the wear and tear on bathroom linens.

Scientists at the American Institute of Laundering, in Joliet, Ill., approved of bathroom yodeling after research showed that it takes the place of a too-vigorous rubdown.

"The silent bath is most likely to seize a bath towel, stretch it as it never should have been stretched, and seek new vigor by a strenuous rubdown," the institute reported. "The result is a bath towel that is ruined by having its body stretched out of shape and its threads torn."

GAS LEADER FINDS 'PLEASURE' IN TAXES

Americans Get Freedom for Their Money, Says W. C. Beckjord.

Americans "ought to be happy to pay taxes," Walter C. Beckjord, president of the American Gas Association and vice president and general manager of the Columbia Gas and Electric Corporation, said here last night.

Speaking at a dinner given by H. Carl Wolf, president of the Atlanta Gas Light Company, Beckjord said:

"When we look abroad and consider the problems which face the rest of the world and when we realize that here in America we may do what we please, think what we please, seek our happiness and security as we please, we ought to be very happy to pay our taxes and we ought to realize that we get something from what we pay."

Referring to the present "sliding oil" of business, Beckjord attributed this to war conditions, saying:

"You cannot destroy wealth without its having this effect." Beckjord also recounted statistics concerning the industry which he heads, pointing out that it is one of the oldest industries in the country.

"Its nature, from its beginning over 100 years ago, has changed completely," he said. "From the original manufactured gas, over 90 per cent of the gas sold now is natural gas. Its transformation and growth has been due to the same thing which has accounted for the survival of every industry in the world, problems in an intelligent way."

Walter Macdonald, chairman of the Public Service Commission, responded to Beckjord's address, congratulating the gas industry on its material progress. He said he hoped seriously that progress in humanitarian and economic fields would soon be made comparable to the mechanical progress which has been shown in the past few years.
